

TRUCE PROPOSAL AGREED ON

U.N. Council Ponders War ... ON SUBCONTINENT

United Nations, N.Y. (P) — U.S. Ambassador George Bush said Thursday night that the 15 members of the U.N. Security Council were in unanimous agreement on a resolution he had introduced for cease-fire, disengagement and withdrawal in the India-Pakistan war.

But, addressing the council after a long recess for consultations, he added that India and Pakistan had not yet accepted the resolution. He suggested that efforts be continued to get them to do so.

To allow time for this process, the council president, Sierra Leone Ambassador Ismael Byne Taylor-Kamara, adjourned the meeting to Friday morning.

U.S. Makes Changes

Bush made some changes in the U.S. resolution, cosponsored by Japan, that he said had been "rather unanimously suggested" in the consultations.

In one change, he specified that the cease-fire should be "immediate."

In another, he substituted a provision asking Secretary-General U Thant to send a special representative to East Pakistan to help solve "humanitarian problems" for one asking him to strengthen the existing staff of the U.N. East Pakistan Relief Operation.

The U.S.-Japanese resolution, originally drafted by some of the council's nonpermanent members, was a counter to one put in by the Soviet ambassador at Thursday night's meeting.

It called for a "durable cease-fire" in all areas of conflict to remain in effect until operations or disengagement take place leading to withdrawal of troops to their own countries.

The Soviet resolution called upon Pakistan to follow India's example and order a cease-fire in the West and to halt military activities in all other areas.

'Accession To Power'

Soviet Ambassador Jacob A. Malik urged the 15-nation council to welcome the "cessation of hostilities in East Pakistan." This, the Soviet proposal said, will lead to the "immediate and unhampered accession to power of the lawful representatives" elected in 1970.

The Soviet proposal called specifically for a cessation of hostilities at 8:30 a.m. CST Friday, the hour previously set by Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi.

Earlier, India appealed to the council to concentrate on getting a complete cease-fire in East Pakistan and the West before turning to such problems as troop withdrawals.

India's bearded foreign minister, Swaran Singh, addressed the 15-nation council as delegates hastily sought to relate a half-dozen proposed peace resolutions to the rapidly developing situation on the Indian subcontinent.

Diplomatic efforts to some extent were outrun by developments, especially the surrender of East Pakistan and Mrs. Gandhi's announcement that a unilateral cease-fire would become effective on all fronts at 8 p.m. Indian time Friday.

End-The-War Plan Rejected By House

Washington (P) — Congress moved to the brink of adjournment Thursday night with an agreement on the long-stalled foreign aid bill after the House voted to reject total U.S. withdrawal from Indochina in six months.

Within two hours of the 130-101 House vote, Senate-House conferees reached agreement on a compromise $2.75 billion foreign aid authorization bill stripped of the Mansfield end-the-war amendment.

The Senate plans to pass the compromise authorization measure Friday morning, then give its approval to a bill providing temporary foreign aid funding until early 1972. The House has already passed that bill.

Then, the way should be clear for Congress to adjourn until Jan. 18.

The House won't take up the compromise authorization measure until that time with its leaders obviously unwilling to bring it up now with so few members on hand. The measure passed by only eight votes when it was originally considered in August.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., said the Senate conferees decided to drop the Mansfield amendment because its chief sponsor, Democratic leader Mike Mansfield, "said it was the closest we could get" to a direct vote.

The vote came, however, on a motion by Rep. Thomas Morgan, D-Pa., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, to table a surprise motion by Rep. William F. Ryan, D-N.Y., to accept the Mansfield amendment. Morgan's motion won 130-101.

Rep. George Mahan, D-Tex., chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, and Morgan then announced that this vote was the House vote that Senate leaders led by Mansfield had been demanding on the end-the-war amendment.

After dropping the Mansfield amendment, the conferees accepted a $341 million spending ceiling on U.S. operations in Cambodia, excluding U.S. support of South Vietnamese actions, and a personnel limit of 285.

'No Final Determination' ... Exon May Seek More For NU

By DON WALTON

Star Staff Writer

Gov. J. James Exon said Thursday he may ask the Legislature's Appropriations Committee to increase its recommended funding for the University of Nebraska.

But, the governor emphasized in an interview, he will make "no final determination" on his future course of action regarding the NU budget until the committee's decisions have been translated into final figures.

And then, Exon said, he will discuss the matter with NU President D. B. Varner, members of the Board of Regents and university administrators before he decides what path to pursue.

Under Proposal

The committee's policy decisions on university appropriations for fiscal 1972-73 apparently will produce a final budget figure below that recommended by the governor.

Exon said he is "convinced" that the university needs the level of funding which he recommended.

"The $3.9 million general fund increase we proposed was a compromise we worked out with the university," he said.

"It was much less than what they wanted, and a little more than we originally proposed."

The compromise was reached through "a series of in-depth negotiations" with the university, the governor said.

"They convinced us of their needs."

Exon recommended that the university's current $43.1 million in financing from the state tax-supported general fund be increased to the $47 million level.

Early estimates indicate that the Appropriations Committee's recommendation will range somewhere between $45 million and $47 million.

"We'll have to wait and see what those final figures are before I say what my final position will be," Exon said.

"But, hopefully, we can come up with a reasonable compromise to prevent a floor fight over the budget."

Not Far Apart

Initial reports of committee decisions indicate that the committee and the governor were "not far apart" on their recommendations for the Medical Center and the University of Nebraska at Omaha, Exon said.

"But it looks like the Lincoln campuses may be in some difficulty on the basis of the budget recommendations," he noted.

Exon said the university's request for an additional $6.8 million in general fund support was "very realistic," especially compared to the "ridiculously large" university budget request initially submitted for the current fiscal year.

Exon said his university budget recommendations, along with his proposals for other state agencies, can all be funded within the limits of a 2½% sales tax and a 13% personal income tax, or the equivalent rates which may be forthcoming as a result of federal income tax reform.

"But, to stay within those guidelines, I will propose that a majority of the cigarette tax money now earmarked for special purposes be transferred into the general fund," the governor noted.

Exon said he has "no basic quarrel" with the state employee salary package finally recommended by the Appropriations Committee.

It calls for a wage hike of $200 plus 2½% of current salary, with a maximum total of $600 and a minimum of $300.

Might Hurt Some

"The maximum limit, while satisfactory in perhaps 90% of the cases, might hurt us some in employing some specialists at the university, especially in the field of agriculture," the governor said.

And, Exon said, he regretted the committee's decision to reject life and health insurance benefits which he proposed.

"But, otherwise, the committee's recommendations are acceptable to me," the governor said.

ORIGINAL DIAMOND MARKET ... opened in 1932 as a fruit and vegetable stand.

Closing Not Easy For Diamonds

By PATTY BEUTLER

Star Staff Writer

Closing up shop for the last time after 39 years in the grocery business does not come easily to Mr. and Mrs. Earl Diamond.

For nearly four decades the Diamond Market has been a neighborhood landmark on the south side of Holdrege between 26th and 27th Sts.

Diamond, who was born in Russia, came to Nebraska in 1923 with his parents, four sisters, and a brother.

After working with his uncles at Northwestern Iron and Metal Co. for a few years, he decided to go into business for himself.

It did not take "too much financing" in those days, related Diamond, as there were not so many items to be stocked on the shelves.

The original Diamond Market, which was basically a fruit and vegetable stand, stood in the middle of the present asphalt parking area, according to Diamond. On one side was a filling station and an alley on the other side.

Also located close to the store was an ice-house for refrigeration.

With the opening of Diamond's market in 1932 came his marriage. His wife Helen, who was born in Rumania, has helped Diamond run the store since the beginning.

Recalling those early days, Diamond said he sold a pound of lard for a nickel, two pounds of hamburger for a quarter, a pound of sugar for a dime, and three dozen eggs for a quarter.

Commenting on the present food costs, Diamond said that "everything moves with the times."

Diamond, too, moved with the times, as he built a newer and bigger market in 1950 on the adjoining lot where his home had stood.

As a neighborhood grocer, Diamond kept his shelves stocked with a variety of items and set up a full-line meat department.

Credit was also given, as "long as we've been in business," related Diamond.

He hastened to add that he was not "pressured" out of business by larger chain stores, but rather is closing "at my own will."

Diamond said that he was "very happy" with all the people in the neighborhood and wanted to "thank them all" for their many years of patronage.

Although it was hard work, Diamond added, he "enjoyed" every minute of it.

The Diamonds have a son, Eddie, who is a doctor in Sacramento, Calif., and a daughter, Mrs. Kay Glick, of Glencoe, Ill. They also have two grandchildren.

So. Sioux City Barber To Fill Wallwey's Post

LeRoy Pfister, a 47-year-old barber from South Sioux City, was named late Thursday by Gov. J. James Exon to fill the legislative vacancy created by the resignation of Sen. Elmer Wallwey.

Wallwey has resigned the 17th District seat in the Unicameral effective Dec. 31.

Pfister will serve the remaining year of Wallwey's term.

"Roy is a barber and has a record of community and civic contribution," Exon said.

"I am confident that he will represent the citizens of Dakota, Dixon and Thurston Counties with the same diligence and distinction as Senator Wallwey."

A Democrat, Pfister is a past commander of the American Legion post at Ponca, a member of the Nebraska Barbers Association, a member of the South Sioux City Chamber of Commerce and deputy grand knight of the Father Tracy Council in that community.

Born in Newcastle, he is married and the father of five children.

Christmas: American Style ...

The Classic That Almost Wasn't

By BARBARA CRAIG

It was cold and clear on Christmas Eve, 1822, as Dr. Clement Moore trudged through the snow towards his home in the Chelsea Village section of New York City.

Moore had a Christmas turkey tucked under his arm. But he probably could have dropped the main course of the holiday meal, and not have noticed it was missing. His mind was elsewhere. Dr. Moore, a professor at the General Theological Seminary, had promised to write a Christmas poem for his children. Time was running out, and he still had not composed the verse.

Then he noticed the clear crunch of his boots on the crisp snow. And the happy faces in the windows. He heard the laughter of children, and the cheery greetings of strangers who passed by on the street. The mood of the holiday season suddenly overwhelmed the scholar, and the words of a poem started to pop into his head. He quickened his pace, and hurried home to translate the thoughts that filled his mind into written words.

Sat Down and Wrote

In the quiet of his den, Moore sat down at his desk and wrote:

"Twas the night before Christmas, When all through the house

Not a creature was stirring, Not even a mouse ..."

Later that Christmas Eve, Dr. Moore delighted his youngsters with a poem he had called "A Visit From St. Nicholas." The rapt attention of his children, and their spontaneous applause convinced the poet that his "frivolous" verse was a success. — at least with his own children. Still, he placed the epic in a desk drawer and promptly forgot about it.

However, the following summer a visiting relative came across the poem in the desk drawer, and enjoyed it so much, he sent a copy to his home town newspaper, the Troy, N.Y., Sentinel, as a prospect for publication in the poetry section during the holiday season.

Printed In 1823

The poem appeared in print for the first time in the December 23, 1823, issue of the Sentinel. It has been printed millions of times since then. It is to the everlasting credit of Sentinel editor Orville L. Olley that he realized the unsigned manuscript he received in the post was a masterpiece. He acknowledged this fact in a preface published with "An Account of A Visit From St. Nicholas."

Olley wrote: "We know not to whom we are indebted for the following description of that unwearied patron of music — that homely and delightful patronage of parental kindness — Santa Claus; his costumes and his equipage as he goes about visiting firesides of this happy land laden with Christmas bounties; but from whomsoever it may have come, we give thanks for it."

Much against his will, Dr. Moore became famous because of his "frivolous" poem. When it was published, the Sentinel office was swamped with mail. Readers wanted to know the name of the author. But the

Indian Troops March Into Dacca

... ARMY IN EAST PAKISTAN SURRENDERS; YAHYA TO FIGHT ON

By The Associated Press

Pakistan's army in East Pakistan surrendered Thursday and as Indian troops marched into Dacca the New Delhi government declared a unilateral cease-fire on the West Pakistan front, 1,000 miles to the west.

Pakistan was reported considering its response. Informed sources in Rawalpindi said late Thursday night the government had the Indian decision under discussion.

Pakistan's President Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan, declaring the loss of East Pakistan after 24 years of Pakistani rule is a temporary setback, vowed to fight on "until occupied areas are taken back."

But India seemed sure of its position. It said the cease-fire will go into effect Friday night on the western front — where a fierce tank battle had been reported raging Wednesday.

"We have repeatedly declared that India has no territorial ambition," an Indian government official said. "Now that Pakistani armed forces have surrendered in Bangla Desh, and Bangla Desh now is free, it is pointless in our view to continue the present conflict."

Outnumbered

The Pakistan army has been outnumbered by Indian forces throughout the fighting. One of Pakistan's problems was that much of its army, normally stationed in the West, has been tied up for months in the east wing.

It seemed part of Indian strategy to keep them there until an over-all peace settlement can be worked out under impetus of the cease-fire.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi told a cheering Parliament in New Delhi that after 13 days of fighting "Dacca is now the free capital of a free country."

She said some of the nearly 10 million refugees who fled to India to escape the Pakistani army had begun to return to Bangla Desh, as the Bengalis call East Pakistan.

Delhi that Indian troops would remain in Bangla Desh "until mopping up operations are completed, until normalcy is restored, until the task set for the army is fully done, until the health and municipal services are restored, and the refugees are repatriated."

The spokesman added that the Bangla Desh civil administration, led by four senior civil servants, was expected to take over general administrative responsibilities Friday in Dacca. Civil administration remains under the over-all command of Gen. Aurora for the time being.

Indian and Pakistani troops mingled freely in Dacca, and the Pakistanis accepted surrender with stoic calm, an AP reporter in the city reported.

"The Indian armed forces will not remain in Bangla Desh longer than they are needed," Mrs. Gandhi told her parliament.

She said India's only aim was "to assist the people of Bangla Desh and the Mukti Bahini to end the reign of terror" that began last March when West Pakistani troops moved against an independence movement.

The Mukti Bahini are guerrillas who fought the Pakistanis.

Mrs. Gandhi repeated pledges given by the Indian army that there would be no reprisals "against the Pakistan army soldiers and the Razakars." The latter are homeguards, called collaborators by the Mukti Bahini.

JOYOUS ... Indian troops are mobbed by Bangla Desh partisans.

China Scowls Toward India

The New York Times

Hong Kong — In a formal statement on the Indian-Pakistan war, the Chinese government Thursday predicted a turbulent future for India.

It also pointed toward a possible trouble zone by filing a strong protest in New Delhi over alleged Indian incursions from Sikkim into Tibet.

The New Delhi government rejected the Chinese allegation. The protest could foreshadow military pressure from China, a strong supporter of Pakistan, along sections of the Himalayan border between India and China.

The statement warned India that "he who plays with fire will be consumed by fire," and stated that "henceforth there will be no tranquility" for the Indian people.

It called attention to what it termed India's own problems with minorities, similar to those manifested by the people of East Bengal against Pakistan.

India is responsible for the defense of the little Himalayan state of Sikkim, as well as for its neighbor, Bhutan, and keeps troops stationed along the border between the two states and Tibet.

China has in the past supported Pakistan's claim to Kashmir, and also aided the Naga and Mizo hill tribesmen in northeast India. These minorities have fought against India for their independence.

Nixon Wants India Out Of East Pakistan

Key Biscayne, Fla. (AP) — The Florida White House said Thursday President Nixon still wants Indian withdrawal from fallen East Pakistan, but hailed a reported cease-fire on the western front as an encouraging turn.

As Nixon received periodic telephone reports from Washington on developments on the subcontinent, presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler renewed U.S. criticism of India's military actions and indicated White House displeasure at the "disintegration" of the Pakistani state.

As for the surrender of East

Pakistan's army, Ziegler turned aside questions. "We have noted the situation there ... I have nothing to say about it."

Ziegler had a sharp, immediate response when asked about a letter Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi sent Nixon contending the war could have been avoided if the United States and other countries had used their influence to release Sheikh Mujibur Rahman, an East Pakistani leader imprisoned on treason charges.

"The way you avoid war," he said, "is by not starting up tanks and putting bullets into rifles."

Release Of Hostages Ends 21-Hour N.J. Inmate Revolt

Yardville, N.J. (UPI) — About 100 inmates angered by alleged guard "brutality" freed two hostages Thursday and ended a 21-hour revolt when state officials publicized their grievance and agreed to investigate the complaint.

The inmates first released guard Ira Friedman, 31, at the Yardville Youth Reception and Correction Center, and about an hour later freed Richard Seidl, 36, an assistant superintendent of the institution, which has a population of 744 prisoners. Both were unharmed.

After the hostages were released the prisoners, many of them teenagers, filed back into their cells in an orderly manner in the south wing of the sprawling center which they had taken over Wednesday afternoon. It was the second prison revolt in New Jersey since Thanksgiving Day.

Facist Tactics
Friedman was released after night-long negotiations between prison and state officials and rebellious inmates who drew up a four-paragraph statement in which they charged guards with using "the fascist tactics of police brutality."

The inmates said once their statement was read over area radio stations they would release Seidl and end their revolt. About an hour later Seidl was freed after the inmates heard their statement broadcast.

"Nobody laid a hand on us," Friedman said after his release. "They took good care of us."

The inmates rebelled after they became angry over treatment a fellow prisoner, who they said had been subjected to "police brutality" and now was confined to the prison hospital.

State Atty. Gen. George F. Kugler Jr., who headed the negotiations with the prisoners, promised the inmates that an investigation would be made of their charge of guard brutality.

No Beatings
He also assured the prisoners they would not be beaten.

"We want to make it clear that what we are talking about is that nobody is going to be beaten," Kugler said.

Kugler said he understood the prisoners were angry over the alleged treatment of an inmate identified only as "Cunningham," who was taken from the mess hall last Monday by four guards.

It was not clear what occurred after the incident but Cunningham, blind in one eye since a childhood accident, was admitted to the prison hospital for treatment.

In their statement, the prisoners charged that no action had been taken against the guards involved. They demanded that the guards be punished and that the American Civil Liberties Union conduct an investigation into the incident.

Last month inmates at the Rahway State Prison in Rahway, N.J. took six persons hostage, including the warden, and held them until they were assured by state officials that their grievances would be investigated.

More than 65 state troopers were called into the Yardville Center on a standby basis but were not needed.

Nader Associate Says 10,000 Die Yearly Due To Unneeded Surgery

Washington (AP) — A Ralph Nader associate charged Thursday that at least 10,000 Americans die annually as a result of two million unnecessary surgical operations.

The victims "are not exclusively the old and the sick who would die anyway. Tragically, they often include the young and the healthy," Dr. Sidney Wolfe told the Commission on Medical Malpractice.

Wolfe, a representative of Nader's Health Research group, said the 10,000 include at least 250 victims of "unnecessary tonsilectomies and adenoidectomies, the 500 that die of unnecessary performed appendectomies and another 500 that die from unnecessary hysterectomies . . ."

Wolfe said the rising number of malpractice suits "offers partial testimony to the incompetence of doctors as to proper diagnosis and treatment of disease" but is only a symptom of what he called a national health care crisis.

Public Rebellion
"Whereas we are presently in the midst of delineating the severity of this crisis," he said, "we are just at the threshold of a growing public rebellion to its existence."

Up to now, he said, attempts to deal with the medical malpractice question have been limited to physicians, lawyers and insurance companies.

"In a rarified atmosphere that exists when decisions affecting the public are made without significant public input, each of these professions predictably makes recommendations which serves its own interests while blaming the other parties. The public suffers," he said.

"At best, the malpractice issue can be used as a foot-in-the-door to improve quality," Wolfe said. "The medical-legal-insurance trinity must now welcome a new partner, the public."

"Although consumer representatives may lack some of the technical skills possessed by doctors, lawyers or insurers, they possess insights into the problems of personal health quality which are invaluable," he said.

No Answer Yet
The American Medical Association, in its prepared testimony, called for some type of new system to handle malpractice complaints but conceded it does not yet have the answer.

Dr. Arthur J. Mannix Jr. of New Rochelle, N.Y., said the present system of court trials has been unsatisfactory for patients, physicians and insurance companies.

Mannix said a 1968 AMA study showed that of the total $75 million collected for malpractice insurance premiums, suing patients received only $20 million although all patients bore the cost in the form of higher medical bills, health insurance premiums and taxes.

A conflicting view was presented by Marvin E. Lewis, president of the American Trial Lawyers Association, who said there should be more, not fewer, malpractice suits to protect patients.

Lewis said such cases are the most difficult to settle out of court, because "the doctor is made a dupe by the insurance profession."

"When doctors are told to fight for their professional reputations," he said, "they are being told really to fight for the insurance company dollar."

Joe Garagiola Curses On The Air

New York (AP) — Joe Garagiola, the ballplayer turned television performer, blew his lines taping a commercial, cursed and, through a technical error, the strong language went on the air Thursday.

NBC, producer of "Sale of the Century," the program on which the incident occurred, assured viewers later "we're extremely sorry."

Garagiola, in an apology which will be aired Friday, said "There was a technical error which resulted in my using language I'm really not proud of. It was done under pressure and unfortunately was heard on the air."

"I sincerely apologize for that language and I assure you it will never happen again."

An NBC spokesman explained that the show was taped several weeks ago but, for timeliness, a Christmas commercial was done Wednesday.

The first three lead-ins to the commercial were bad, he said, and at the end of the third try Joe said to the technicians, "Oh, Christ, I'm sorry, god-damnmit," and then went on to do a fourth.

By error, the spokesman said, the third version was the one aired.

The program with the offending version was fed to network affiliates in all sections of the country except the West Coast, where the correct version of the commercial appeared.

Phantom Jet Shot Down In Cambodia

Saigon (AP) — An American jet which crashed Thursday near Phnom Penh definitely was hit by enemy ground fire while supporting Cambodian troops northwest of the capital, military sources reported.

The U.S. Air Force F4 Phantom fighter-bomber crashed and burned 200 yards from Phnom Penh's airport after the two pilots bailed out.

Military sources in the Cambodian capital said the plane was hit while on a bombing run near Phnom Base, 14 miles to the northwest.

The pilots apparently tried to make an emergency landing at Phnom Penh, but aborted the effort at the last minute and parachuted to safety. Witnesses said the plane was trailing smoke as it approached the airport.

U.S. officers in Saigon said the pilots were picked up by a Cambodian helicopter and taken to the airfield, where they were transferred to a U.S. rescue helicopter, which returned them to their base in Thailand.

The U.S. Command said the crash brought to 8,053 the number of U.S. aircraft lost to all causes in the Indochina war.

Surrounded
From Cambodia's North-eastern front came word that the government garrison of about 4,000 men at Taing Kauk, 48 miles northeast of Phnom Penh, has been surrounded by the North Vietnamese.

South Vietnamese spokesmen reported that a 6,000-man task force pushing through the Chup rubber plantation in eastern Cambodia had reached the east bank of the Mekong River.

The South Vietnamese troops have not yet encountered significant resistance in their drive through Chup, 35 miles inside Cambodia and about 110 miles northwest of Saigon.

10 Defenders Killed
Battlefield action remained light in South Vietnam, but Viet Cong guerrillas attacked a village office in Binh Dinh Province on the central coast. Ten of the 30 defenders were killed and 11 wounded.

In Phuoc Tuy province, southeast of Saigon, guerrillas ambushed a convoy of high-ranking police officials. Four were wounded.

Two Americans were killed in combat last week, the U.S. Command reported, but the number of GIs who died from nonhostile causes jumped to 38. The killed-in-action figure equalled the lowest official weekly total in nearly seven years.

The command reported 56 Americans wounded in action last week, a climb from the 14 reported the previous week.

Change In Status
A spokesman, Maj. Chester Hanson, said the rise in nonhostile deaths to 38—the highest total since last February — reflected a change in the status of 30 Americans from missing to dead. They were among 34 GIs killed when their CH-47 Chinook helicopter crashed north of Da Nang Nov. 28.

Turkey Pledges 'Brotherly' Help

Ankara, Turkey (AP) — The government program of newly appointed Prime Minister Nihat Erim pledged help to "brotherly" Pakistan Thursday.

In presenting his program to parliament Erim did not specify what kind of help he had in mind.

On the plight of Pakistan, with which Turkey is allied in the CENTO defense pact and a regional economic pact, the program says the government and nation "feel deep sorrow."

5 Workers Killed

Lima, Peru (UPI) — Five workers at Cerro de Pasco's San Cristobal Mine in La Oroya, 100 miles east of Lima, were killed in a mine shaft accident.

Soldier Held 50 Hours In Steel Container

Long Binh, South Vietnam (UPI) — An American soldier being held for questioning without charges was kept more than two days inside a steel shipping container by U.S. military police, it was learned Thursday.

An Army spokesman said the soldier was hospitalized Wednesday night after 50 hours' detention inside the makeshift jail cell, a "conex" container, 6½ feet high, 8 feet wide and 10 feet deep.

The container, modified as a jail cell, stands outside the Long Binh provost marshal's office where it has served to hold dozens of GIs awaiting questioning without charges.

"Army regulations permit the conexes to be used as detention facilities when nothing else is available," the spokesman said. Long Binh, however, is the largest and best equipped U.S. base in Vietnam, 18 miles northeast of Saigon, with thousands of buildings, including a large jail.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

The housing situation in Lincoln continues to be a major subject of discussion among public bodies. Efforts are underway through Lincoln's low-income housing organizations to oppose any hike in rents due to rulings of the national price board.

Also, a Lincoln low-income group is seeking local government subsidy of rents and pressures are being exerted to take students out of low-income housing in the city. Finally, the Lincoln-Lancaster County Goals and Policies Committee has passed several recommendations having to do with housing.

The goals committee proposes that tenants be allowed to withhold rents for lack of adequate services and repairs. On the other hand, landlords could garnish wages for failure of tenants to pay rents.

In another action, the committee has recommended that utility companies not be allowed to cut off service to anyone for failure to pay bills during the winter months. Very obviously, low-income groups have discovered the force and effectiveness of organization.

Mounting problems in many of these areas can be expected. The problems stem from two things — one, the inability of a community to meet its legitimate housing needs and, two, the difficulty of insuring an equitable situation in housing matters.

One wonders in the first instance if the nation is not heading toward a more socialistic concept in housing. One wonders if housing will not eventually become a kind of right such as the air we breathe. Curiously, housing is one area where many governments of the world have made a better record than the U.S.

In Russia, most visitors are impressed by the fact that there is relatively adequate and cheap housing. In South Africa, one of the assets of apartheid policies there is the provision of good housing for many black groups.

In neither of these countries has the housing situation solved other problems but the significant thing is that many governments, especially autocratic ones, tend to recognize housing as one fundamental human right.

Curiously, we have never recognized it as such in this country. We talk about it somewhat in terms of a fundamental right but we have never really committed ourselves to the principle.

We still are hung up on the idea that not even housing can be provided free except in the case of absolute economic hardship. We have difficulty providing adequate housing because we cannot easily distinguish between real poverty need and the lack of personal responsibility.

In other words, we can't tell whether a person deserves public support for housing or whether he ought to be made to work for his housing. Ultimately, this may not make any difference. Ultimately we may decide that a minimum level of housing is a fundamental right and guaranteed to everyone regardless of ability to pay.

Our suspicion is that this is the only way in which we will finally solve the housing problem for low-income people. This is the concept that is gaining widespread acceptance in the welfare field and which is the cornerstone of President Nixon's welfare reform program. You can call it by all sorts of names but it finally gets down to a guaranteed minimum wage.

As this concept spreads, it will come to encompass more and more things, unless it is finally capsulized under a total minimum wage program. But this is doubtful because minimum wage level that would provide adequate housing, food, clothing, health care, etc., would not be feasible in a free economy.

Rather, many areas of like must be dealt with separately, to guarantee to all a minimum level of existence while maintaining full freedom of the individual to rise above that level according to his opportunity and ability.

We are not necessarily advocating these social goals but we have the feeling they are coming — that the old standard of ability to pay will one day be a forgotten part of our past and we will have pure socialism up to a certain minimum level of existence and full free enterprise from that point on.

The American Voter Does As He Pleases

NEW YORK — The recent spectacle of national politicians scattering campaign promises to nail down the "youth vote" and the "aged vote" brings up an irrelevant question: Is it really all that cut-and-dried?

Do candidates scrambling to woo "voting blocs" with extravagant promises of future goodies really think the kids will all vote alike? Or that everybody over 65 can be won with the same line?

That's not the way it usually works out.

Politicians keep talking about the "black vote," but more and more it's beginning to look like there's no such thing. In the last election they split their ballots . . . supported white liberals over black candidates . . . and even voted for people not particularly sympathetic to their problems.

Then there's the "labor vote." Can any presidential hopeful feel he has that one cinched when not even the union bosses can be sure any more? If they can't guarantee a contract vote, how can they promise to deliver for a politician?

The Lady Libs would like to have us think they can swing the "women's vote" to non-male chauvinist office-seekers. And, in theory, they're right. Women make up 53 per cent of the voting public and could — if they all stuck together — elect just about anybody they fancied. Even another woman.

But, just for fun, what do you suppose the odds would be on getting that many females to agree on one thing? So much for the "women's vote."

And the "farm vote" . . . and the "veteran's" . . . and the "Indian" . . .

Mexican . . . Jewish . . . Protestant . . . Catholic

Because the American voter is an ornery cuss. When it comes to his secret ballot, he refuses to let himself be taken for granted, pushed around, or lumped under a hackneyed label.

Never mind what he tells his boss . . . or the shop steward . . . or the pollsters. When he gets in that little booth by himself, he votes as an individual. Which is the way it ought to be.

And yet, in recent days, the President has flown to Chicago to promise a delegation of young people a wider role in "the American adventure." Keeping in mind, of course, those 25,000,000 new voters next year.

Next, he promised a convention of oldsters (representing 20,000,000 voters over 65) some $100,000,000 for help on their problems, plus relief from property taxes. And Sen. Ted Kennedy dropped around to make sure they'd heard about his proposed $250,000,000 food program for the elderly.

Maybe it would be more realistic to label voters in relation to their current problems — and gear the campaign promises accordingly.

Like the "unemployed vote" (more jobs for young, old, black, veterans, etc.) . . . "parents of drug addicts" (strict narcotics controls) . . . or "pollution fighters" severe crack down on violators).

And, to put an end to labels once and for all, under this system the catch-all category would be the "asthmatic-old-black-Catholic-woman-with-a-husband-in-jail-and-a-son-on-drugs-who's just lost her job-due-to-the-farm vote."

'It Happened Over Here Long Ago'

Taft Proposes Amnesty

Amnesty for draft resisters opposed to the Vietnam war was raised as a political issue by Sen. George McGovern early in his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination and it appears that the issue will be joined by candidates of any or all partisan coloring as election year 1972 wears on.

Rep. John Y. McCollister, the Omaha Republican, earlier sounded like he favored amnesty but more recently restated his case to say that while he wasn't waving the flag for it, amnesty is still a concept which he feels a majority of Americans may be willing to embrace.

Sen. Robert Taft, R-Ohio, said this week that he will introduce a bill that would provide amnesty for some 70,000 draft resisters who are in federal prison or in exile. The Ohio conservative's proposal would require that in return for amnesty, the draft resisters serve three years in the armed forces or a federal service agency.

Many observers see Taft's proposal as an administration effort to pre-empt the amnesty issue from Democratic exploitation.

No matter what Congress does with the bill, the administration can argue that the Nixon team fought for amnesty.

But whether or not those affected by the Taft proposal would accept that type of amnesty — with strings attached — is another question. Perhaps draft resisters would choose to remain in exile or prison rather than submit to the substitute service requirement. One group of exiles in Toronto said the proposal could only be taken seriously if it was enlarged to include those who were already inducted into the armed forces but later deserted because of opposition to the war or military service in general.

There seems to be a mood building in this country toward a reconciliation of the elements of the American people driven apart by the war. Would that mood, however, tolerate an outright amnesty for draft resisters and military deserters? Probably not. It would be a far-reaching and perhaps dangerous step to take if precedent is taken into consideration. The Taft proposal would still allow the slate to be wiped clean but would not be giving something for nothing.

Pete McCloskey stands about as much chance in a primary battle against President Nixon as a pygmy would against a stampeding herd of elephants. Nevertheless, the Republican congressman from California has opened campaign headquarters in New Hampshire and, buoyed by a depth of support he has thus far managed to keep secret, has announced he will tackle the President in a couple of other primaries as well.

McCloskey mounts a challenge from the Republican left, attacking Nixon's war policy and various aspects of his domestic program. The GOP can appeal to a wide spectrum of Americans, not just the silent majority, is McCloskey's message.

Now Nixon's right is being out-flanked by Rep. John M. Ashbrook, an Ohio conservative, who believes the Republican Party is "sliding to the left" under the incumbent President's leadership.

Several months ago, a group of influential writers and publishers in the east declared they were "withholding support" from Nixon, primarily because of his posture on military preparedness, which they considered weakened. A week ago, that same group asked Ashbrook to run against the President in next year's primaries.

Ashbrook said Wednesday that since his name surfaced as a potential challenger "hard cash" contributions and offers of help have been received by his office, pressing him to observe, "I'm a lot closer to the range where you say yes than ever before."

If he runs, Ashbrook asserted, it will not be a campaign to "dump Nixon," but to provoke a discussion on the course the GOP has taken in the last three years.

It's safe to bet that the Ashbrook challenge, as compared to McCloskey's, is the more formidable. But that's only by comparison. Neither is a threat.

War Questions Involving Vietnam Conflict; Is Troop Withdrawal Pre-Election Gimmick?

NEW YORK — Saigon, reads the dateline, and part of the story goes as follows:

"The reported drive is . . . aimed at keeping North Vietnamese forces away from South Vietnam's Military Region III. That region includes Saigon and 11 surrounding provinces and shares 231 miles of border with Cambodia."

"Other objectives . . . are to disrupt North Vietnamese supply routes and to destroy enemy base camps and material in order to prevent the enemy assaults against South Vietnamese bases."

Sound familiar? It certainly does, but this is not May, 1970, and those are not American but South Vietnamese troops staging an "incursion" into Cambodia. Otherwise, not much has changed; the sanctuaries still have to be cleaned out, North Vietnamese supplies still have to be destroyed, enemy build-ups still have to be countered, despite the glowing claims of other days.

Of course, the B-52s were out ahead of the 25,000 South Vietnamese who mounted this most recent assault into Cambodia. From above the clouds, the Americans piloting them spread the random destruction that is their hallmark, while nearer the earth American-supplied helicopters and fighter planes played close-support roles. As in earlier invasions, some of these, now or later, may even be flown by American personnel.

Farther to the west and north of Phnom Penh, meanwhile, the American-supplied and trained Cambodian army has suffered major setbacks at the hands of tough North Vietnamese forces. American officials believe Hanoi's operations in Cambodia are directed primarily at easier military access to South Vietnam, rather than at Cambodia itself; but any way you study the situation, it hardly augurs well for Cambodia.

Aside from the fact that it was precisely this kind of situation that the American invasion of 1970 was supposed to prevent, the continuing battle in Cambodia raises some pointed questions, the answers to which could have loud reverberation in American politics.

Is the war really "winding down"? Obviously, it is not. The Nixon administration has resumed the bombing of North Vietnam any time it declares a military necessity to do so, and the shadowy fighting in Laos continues; now the new incursion into Cambodia comes as a graphic reminder that this is a far "wider" war than it was when Richard Nixon took it over from Lyndon Johnson.

It is true that Nixon has reduced the American ground combat role and its consequent casualties, and no doubt he intends to cut them even further; it may also be true that constant pounding has reduced North Vietnamese and Viet Cong strength. But there is nothing to show a slackening of will on Hanoi's part, and the Cambodian operations are ominous portents for the future.

Will pulling out American ground troops end the war for Americans? It is by no means clear that Nixon plans to pull them all out, but even if he did, the United States almost certainly will have to retain a major role in the wider war now being fought and that remains in prospect for the future.

For one thing, the United States is the principal supplier of both the Cambodia and South Vietnamese armies, and owns Laotian forces, lock, stock and gunbarrel. For another, the only thing that comes close to equalizing these forces with those of North Vietnam and the Viet Cong is American air power. And these factors, which suggest that the United States is nowhere close to extricating itself from Indochina, are reinforced by still another question.

Can South Vietnamese forces defend Cambodia as well as South Vietnam? The South

Who's Got The Budget?

Budget, budget, who's got the budget?

That question was still bothering a few observers of the state's legislative process this week in the wake of decisions of the Unicameral's Budget and Appropriations Committee.

The committee had come and gone, but no one seemed to know for sure what it did.

It had approved budget recommendations.

But as week's end neared, fiscal impact of those decisions was still locked away in piles of files and in the tapes that recorded the committee sessions.

And the entire state budget (committee version) was in limbo.

All decisions the committee had made prior to Tuesday were thrown out of whack by the second-round vote on salary increases.

By the time Tuesday was over, we thought we knew what the recommendation was for the University of Nebraska (within about $2 million, that is), but we weren't much closer than that.

The university didn't know, the fiscal analyst apparently wasn't sure and the committee members themselves surely couldn't have said exactly what the fiscal impact of those final day decisions were.

I suppose it could be argued that the committee made decisions on what policies it would recommend and was willing to accept whatever fiscal impact that turned out to be.

But I think it would have been more fair if on that day the fiscal impact might have been shared with the public, the university and the governor (who has his own recommendations, remember).

Instead, we have only the word of the legislature's chief fiscal analyst, who said, "It will be a long time before we have final figures."

Milan Wall

No Final Figures

How long, he didn't say. And that's the rub.

If the committee is done with its action, then it ought to share what that means with the state's citizens as quickly as possible.

Left in something of a vacuum, I assume, to figure out what steps to take next, were the governor, the university and any other state agency which hopes to get more money from the Legislature when it begins that outrageously short session next month.

Although NU's budget officers spent long hours with committee members and the fiscal staff this fall, news reports seem to indicate the university still has consideration of its own requests coming.

According to one local morning daily, the budget committee considered its own staff recommendations and the governor's recommendations the day it decided on the university's budget.

What happened to the university's recommendations?

If those news reports are accurate (what else?), it would only seem fair that legislators give consideration to the university's request if not in committee, on the floor after the session starts.

Similar treatment for any other agency would only be fair, it seems to me, or else we might as well not pay employees within those agencies to work up budget requests.

Actually, the university's students seemed to have more impact on the committee than the regents or NU's president had.

One of the things the kids specifically asked for (consolidation of card catalogs in Love Library) was endorsed by the committee, even though the regents had not asked that.

Perhaps the regents ought to turn over their lobbying responsibilities to the kids for a year. (No cards or letters, please!)

If the vagueness of the fiscal impact is not enough to get up the dander of the state's citizens and those people who are responsible for running the state's business, however, the committee's decision on wages ought to be.

The committee would apparently leave no room for bosses to reward their best employees monetarily.

The committee action appears to call for strict adherence to the formula and to the minimal and maximal limits, although, as I understand it, promotions could win an employee a higher salary if the university had the funds to pay him.

And although I assume that won't have the force of law (or couldn't legally) the university and other agencies will still have to answer on that score on the next round a year from now.

But what does the university, or any other state agency, do if it wants to reward with "merit" pay those who do the best work?

With that kind of power, it seems to me, it would be easier to subtly tell those workers one would rather see leave that others are getting the merit pay this year, and for such-and-such reasons.

It also might help attract better people who know they will be rewarded financially for good work.

And the surely wouldn't hurt any government agency in Nebraska or anywhere else.

Lincoln, Neb.

There has come into my hands a printed document which describes in most unfavorable terms a musical production, "Hair." This document also associates the names of some members of the Pershing Municipal Auditorium advisory board with approval of a plan to present this production in Lincoln. The document is not signed nor in any way identified as to its authorship.

I have no quarrel with the document's description of the play, "Hair." I have no reason to defend the vote of those who favor bringing "Hair" to Lincoln. What appalls and distresses me is the fact that a document containing a strong denouncement should be published anonymously!

In this country, we may speak and we may publish with freedom guaranteed by the First Amendment to the Constitution of the United States. Anyone who publishes anything whatsoever either for or against any matter affecting the public interest or affecting the well-being, including the reputation, of any individual, in my judgment, has an absolute obligation to identify himself as the author by name and address.

The Lincoln community may be sharply divided about "Hair" and about many other matters, as well. It ought never to be divided about the responsibility for identifying the authorship of a published document.

WILLIAM E. DAUGHERTY

No Pay Raise

Beatrice, Neb.

Recently we received a letter from our governor, Mr. Exon, stating: "During the past year we recommended to the Legislature, and they approved, salary increases averaging $300 per employee."

I have news for the governor and the taxpayers. We at the Beatrice State Home who have stuck it out for several years and are drawing $7,000 or more a year did not receive a dime. I am wondering what happened to this appropriated money?

In some cases, this gives the worker as much salary as the supervisor, who carries the responsibilities.

In 1970 he heard big promises about being paid a salary comparable to private industry. Each state employee wasted approximately two hours filling out papers, plus $65,000 paid to a firm to study the pay schedule.

Then they wonder why the young people are not staying in Nebraska.

CONCERNED

The Consequences

Lincoln, Neb.

The voters and taxpayers who did not attend the board meeting at Pershing Auditorium Tuesday Morning, Dec. 14, will never even imagine what they missed "Hair" is coming to Lincoln and we all will have to take the consequences.

I am wondering if we will ever again be able to protect ourselves from decadent people and circumstances.

ONE WHO WAS THERE

Wants To See Show

Lincoln, Neb.

I just can't believe the people in Lincoln could be so uptight about a show, "Hair" has good music. "Hair" has a nude scene in it and attacks religion as it is today. "Hair" actually attacks the tinsel world "environmental self" we in this country are living around. So, does that mean no one should be able to see it?

If we are going to close productions because of nude scenes, then every movie house in the city should be closed because they all have them "Bully Jack," "Summer of '42" and yes, even "Planet of the Apes" have nude scenes.

If we are going to close productions because they attack something we believe in, then we had better close all theaters, censor all books including the Bible, destroy all TV sets and never try to communicate with the world around us, because we are sure to offend someone.

If we want to prevent it because Pershing is a publicly owned facility and it is of fensive to some people, then I would like to know what show can be brought to Pershing? Evidently the Ramsey Lewis Trio offended some, because a lot of people walked out. No show in existence, even "Disney on Parade," can please everyone.

If the people who don't like "Hair" don't want to go, then they don't have to go. But I want to see it and I'm a member of the public, too.

PEACE

Alabama Booster

Broken Bow, Neb.

This is in regard to Senator Chambers' statement about Alabama's beating Nebraska.

First of all, I am color-blind and think black and white are both beautiful.

I had a lot of respect for Chambers after he was elected to the office of senator and for some of his ideas, but that statement blew it all for me.

I was born in the state of California and had a lot of black friends, more than he may have after that statement. The greatest players from all over the country are on that team, black and white, so why pick on Nebraska? I am so sick of this racial thing and feel that Chambers is way out of line.

I know we are down on blacks when we love such people as Flip Wilson, Charley Pride, Sammy Davis and the thousands of black football, track and basketball players.

I think Senator Chambers owes the University of Nebraska an apology. This would gain some respect and prove him a man.

I'm sure Governor Wallace would like to have him as a senator in the state of Alabama. Why knock the state that elected him?

7% Pay Increases OK In Some Circumstances

Washington (UPI) — The Pay Board adopted rules Thursday that would allow wage increases of up to 7% a year under certain circumstances, in excess of its general guideline of 5.5% a year.

The board also agreed to reassess an earlier ruling that gives union members an advantage over non-union workers in getting merit pay increases during President Nixon's Phase 2 economic controls.

The rule, adopted Nov. 23 under a cloud of confusion and clarified Dec. 3, said merit increases provided in labor contracts are not subject to the 5.5% guideline, but merit increases where no labor agreement exists must adhere to the guideline.

Pay Board Chairman George H. Boldt called a news conference for Friday to explain the circumstances under which the 5.5% limit could be exceeded, but sources close to the board disclosed them in advance.

Three cases under which increases of up to 7% a year could be allowed were:

- A "tandem" situation under which the wages of certain workers had been tied closely with others in the same industry or an associated industry for at least five years or over the two previous contracts. If the other workers signed a contract before the economic controls were imposed, the affected workers could be allowed to exceed the 5.5% limit if their contract did not start more than six months later than the other workers.
- If an employer has difficulty recruiting employs at an existing wage level, if he has a significant number of vacancies and if there has been no deterioration of working conditions, he may provide increases up to 7% a year after 90 days of intensive recruiting.
- If aggregate pay increases of the preceding 36 months have averaged less than 7% a year, the difference between the annual average and 7% may be added to the 5.5% limit, up to a maximum of 7%. This was described as a "catch-up" clause for workers whose pay increases may have fallen behind in the last 36 months.

Cost-of-living pay adjustments can be computed on the basis of the increase in pay for the entire first year rather than the aggregate amounts of the percentage increases.

For instance, if 1% increases for higher costs of living were provided every three months during the first year, then this average of 15% for the entire year would have to be included within the 5.5% guideline for a general wage increase.

City's Landfill Won't Be Taking More Junk Cars

Junked cars will no longer be accepted at the city's sanitary landfill on No. 48th St., Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf said Thursday.

"We can't accept junked cars because we do not have the proper equipment, they take up too much space and they can't be recycled," he said.

He said that anyone who wants to get rid of junked automobiles should contact the mayor's office for the proper methods of disposition.

The dumping of cars at the landfill is becoming more and more of a problem, he said, adding that Northwestern Metal Co. will take the junked cars for recycling if the vehicles are taken there during their open hours.

Limiting Doctor Fee Hike Discriminatory, AMA Says

Chicago (AP) — The American Medical Association has termed discriminatory the federal Price Commission's requirement that physicians secure prior approval before increasing fees by more than 2.5%.

In a statement, the AMA said Thursday the guidelines applied for physicians' fees "appear to single out health care providers for some regulatory controls that are not applied to other providers of services."

The Price Commission ruled Wednesday that physicians may not raise their fees more than an average of 2.5% and hospitals not more than 6% without specific approval.

The AMA said "the guidelines as we understand them, provide no avenues of relief" for doctors whose costs may increase by more than 2.5%.

Civil Rights Team Is Studying Road Department

An eight-member civil rights team from the Federal Highway Administration was holding an on-site review on the Nebraska Department of Roads to make sure the state complies with the 1964 Civil Rights Act, state roads officials said Thursday.

The on-site segment of the review will be completed Friday.

The compliance review is required by the administration for federally funded operations and is said to be routine.

Leonard Carper, regional civil rights officer for the administration, said the team is studying the State Roads Department's minority hiring policies, its right of way and relocation programs and its equal employment opportunities for contract.

Check Scheme Nets Modishly Dressed Man $1,129,232

Cornelia, Ga. (UPI) — A modishly dressed man, sporting a Fu Manchu beard and "granny" eyeglasses, made off with more than $1 million in a slick scheme using stolen checks, the U.S. attorney's office in Atlanta said Thursday.

The checks were stolen from the Perini Corp., a construction firm in Framingham, Mass., a company spokesman confirmed the company is out $1,129,232, though $997,500 of that is covered by insurance. Perini is a part owner of the Atlanta Braves baseball team.

Asst. U.S. Atty. Robert L. Smith said the man, age 28 to 32, walked into the First National Bank of Habersham County in Cornelia, Ga., Sept. 7, using the name of Jesse D. Quinsberry. Smith said the man told the bank he operated a construction company in Atlanta, and gave a Peachtree Street address, which proved to be fictitious.

Smith described the man as 5 feet 6 inches tall, weighing 135 to 140 pounds.

The man opened a checking account in the name of Quinsberry Construction Co., and after signing a signature card, deposited three checks totaling about $190,000.

On Sept. 10, the man was back to make another deposit, and, this time, also withdrew $45,000 in cash.

Over the next three weeks, the man visited the bank several times. He opened a second account, this time in the name of Southern Construction Co., and again giving a fake Atlanta address. Each time he visited the bank, he deposited checks and withdrew cash.

On Oct. 1, he withdrew $220,000, leaving about $600 in one account and about $1,000 in the second. He hasn't been seen since.

No easy task to keep the Christmas spirit going. The youngest moppet at last gave up on Santa Claus. It was a hard one to keep going. He hung on longer than the others. But he was getting sharper in the questions.

He asked last year: "Why doesn't Santa Claus get burned coming down the chimney?"

I said: "He wears fireproof clothing. Like on TV when they put out fires on airplanes."

You have to be Jack-bonnie in this business.

All over now. That's a relief. Santa Claus is really your father. With a charge-a-plate.

Brisk nights now. I went out on the deck of my scatter-by-the-bay and bayed the moon. Big cold moon up in the big cold sky.

I put a wreath on the door. I put some holly around the house. I hung a little mistletoe. A house should look like Christmas.

When I was waiting for Santa Claus, ladies got kissed under the mistletoe. That was pretty lively stuff. The lady got kissed. She blushed. The gentleman twirls his moustaches.

Grandma said maybe it was the custom, but it seemed mighty gay to her. Gay in those gay days had a different meaning.

The moppets weren't worried about Santa Claus getting burned in the chimney. Let him set himself on fire. That's his problem.

They were worried about the presents getting burned.

I said: "The presents are in a fireproof bag."

I had to have fast answers — they always checked me out.

"Suppose he doesn't have the string fastened."

I said: "It closes with a zipper."

They said: "What if the zipper gets stuck? Like on my dress."

I said: "Go watch TV. I'm all worn out from work today."

All over that now. Farewell to Santa Claus. Welcome to the man with the Diners Club credit card.

About kissing under the mistletoe. A whole lot of the world does not kiss. They rub noses. Eskimos do that.

If you find an Eskimo under the mistletoe, rub noses with her.

Who started all this? It is lost in the mists of time — as we poets put it.

"So she caught him and kissed him."

That is from 350 B. C. Book of Proverbs. Shows you how far back kissing goes. It is not a new custom we celebrate beneath the mistletoe. But it's a good one. Long lasting.

"'Twas Christmas broached the mightiest ale;

"'Twas Christmas told the merriest tale;

"A Christmas gambol oft could cheer.

"The poor man's heart though half the year."

I tried that out the cold, cold night. I came in shivering from the deck and made hot buttered rum.

Immediately I felt cheered. I tried to tell a merry tale. But the children said: "Shhh. We're watching Partridge Family."

Very well. I will have my hot buttered rum in the chimney corner. First they burn-rap Santa Claus. Then they hush the father.

No easy thing to keep the Christmas spirit going. A less spirited man would give up. But not the Silver Fox of Snug Harbor.

Campaign Manager Named

By The Associated Press

A 24-year-old Omaha woman, Kay Brown, was named Thursday to be manager of the campaign of Lincoln's Wallace C. Peterson for the Democratic U.S. senatorial nomination.

Miss Brown graduated last January from the University of Nebraska at Omaha and leaves a job as state welfare officer to accept the full time campaign post.

"People are so used to campaign managers being middle-aged men wearing gray suits that I think being different will be a great advantage," she said.

"Political ability is not necessarily based on age or sex."

Miss Brown has been active in several campaigns by Democrats, including the presidential campaign of the late Robert F. Kennedy and the congressional campaign of Mrs. Maxine Morrison of Omaha. In 1970 she was Omaha coordinator for Peterson's senatorial campaign.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Raymond Brown of Omaha, she studied political science at the University of Minnesota before moving to Omaha in 1967. She is the Young Democratic national committeewoman from Nebraska, is a member of the Douglas County Democratic Central Committee and a past vice president of Nebraska Young Democrats.

Lincoln Chamber Moving Friday To New Quarters

The Lincoln Chamber of Commerce announced Thursday that it will move into new quarters Friday.

Chamber of Commerce President William C. Smith said the chamber will occupy office space on the sixth floor of the CTU Building at 1221 N. St. The chamber is currently located on the second floor of the Lincoln Building at 1001 O St.

The Women's Division of the chamber and the Jaycees will also move to the new address, Smith indicated.

Because the chamber's lease in the Lincoln Building was to expire, chamber members with office space available were asked to submit proposals. The chamber's board of directors selected the proposal presented by Central Telephone and Utilities Corporation.

Russia Supports Any Cairo Move

By United Press International
The Soviet ambassador to Cairo said Thursday Moscow will back any military or diplomatic move by Egypt to regain occupied territory from Israel. It was the first public endorsement by a high-ranking Soviet diplomat of any Egyptian decision to resume the Middle East war.

Soviet Ambassador Vladimir Vinogradov, in an interview with the Cairo newspaper Al Goumhouriya said:

"We support Cairo's decision, whether it is for peace or the battle, because in either case it will lead to liquidation of the (Israeli) aggression."

Vinogradov was further quoted as saying:

"If the solution is to be war, we support you to make it a war with a minimum of losses. If the solution is to be peace, we also support you because it would be a solution without losses."

Efforts were continuing in the United Nations in New York to reactivate the peace mission of U.N. negotiator Gunnar V. Jarring. Jarring met with Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad Wednesday and Israeli foreign Minister Abba Eban Thursday.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat has repeatedly warned that the Middle East crisis must be resolved by the end of this year, either by a political settlement or renewal of hostilities.

Indian Ocean Is Declared Peace Zone

United Nations, N.Y. (AP) — The General Assembly declared the Indian Ocean a peace zone Thursday with limits to be determined through consultations with nearby nations.

The assembly approved a Ceylonese proposal by a vote of 60 to 0, with 55 abstentions. India and Pakistan favored the resolution.

Among the major powers, China voted yes, but Britain, France, the United States and the Soviet Union abstained.

The resolution calls on the big powers to negotiate with Indian Ocean nations for the elimination of military installations, nuclear weapons and great power rivalry in the zone.

Short 60-Day Legislative Session May Cut Controversy

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Judging from the number of bill draft requests and comments from some senators, the 60-days the Unicameral's 1972 session is limited to might make the session a matter of budget issues rather than new controversies.

So far senators have tempered the number of bills they will introduce.

According to Jack Wilson, chief bill drafter, only 175 bill drafts have been requested by senators. This compares to some 250 requests at this time last year.

In part, Wilson accounts for this fact by noting the limit of 10 bills which can be introduced by one senator was adopted this past year along with the 60-day session limit.

Few Reach Limit

Up till now only two or three senators, Wilson said, have reached their limit of 10. However, there is no limit on the number of bills which can be introduced by a committee or a department.

Sen. Wally Barnett of Lincoln said because of ceiling on individual bills many senators may try to get their bills introduced through committee.

One source who did not wish to be identified said he thought the upcoming session would be a "budget" session rather than one filled with far-reaching, innovative bills. The reason for this, he said, is the time limit.

Sen. Jules Burbach of Crofton agreed with this assessment: "I hope that's the way it will be. The major work of the upcoming session will be the constitutional amendments held over from the last session, bills from the study committees and the budget."

Controversial Matters

The veteran legislator also said the 60-day limit might keep new controversial matters from passing.

"It just might have that effect. With the amount of work we'll have to do in 60 days, a controversial new bill might not get through the process. It should keep bills which haven't been given thorough consideration from passing," he said.

However, Barnett said the time limit should not keep uncharted matters from passing.

"I hope it (the time limit) would not prevent serious consideration from being given to controversial matters."

"We've got some important work ahead of us," he added.

Emphasis On Efficiency

Rather than keeping new controversial matters, such as no-fault insurance, from being given adequate consideration, the Lincoln legislator said the emphasis will have to be on efficiency.

"We're going to need more self-discipline. I think the seldom-used 10-minute time limit on lengthy debate will have to be invoked," he said.

Speculating on the chances of getting the four-fifths votes needed to extend the session if some major stones are left unturned, Barnett said he doubted any such measure would pass.

"This isn't a part-time job anymore; it requires a full-time senator. But on $400 a month a legislator couldn't feed his family unless he's well-off."

"These guys won't extend that session, because they've got to get back to their jobs so they can eat," he said.

Insurance Bill Wellington, New Zealand (AP) — A bill introduced by the government would provide accident compensation for all persons injured at work or in auto mishaps, without proof of negligence.

Food Bank 'Alright,' But Should Be Only One Part Of Effort—Kreuscher

State Agriculture Director Glenn Kreuscher said Thursday he supports the federal measure to create a national food bank, but he added that it should only be one part of a total effort to help the farmer.

"It's alright; it's needed," he said.

"However, it should be part of a total program. The food bank idea is not going to put cash in the hands of small farmers fast enough," Kreuscher said.

Kreuscher added that the loan rate on the 1971 crop should be raised along with the acreage diversion rates for next spring. This, he said, would help put some cash into the hands of small farmers quickly.

Under the national food bank bill, about $1.5 billion worth of grains—300 million bushels of wheat and 25 million tons of feed grains—would be stored to serve as an aid in planning production. The annual cost has been estimated at $215 million.

However, Kreuscher said the giant grain companies benefit more from this measure than small farmers.

"The profit will be realized by the giants," Kreuscher said.

"True Colors"

"Earl Butz (the new agriculture secretary) showed his true colors by supporting this idea. He was listening to his rich friends."

Kreuscher did say, however, that the food bank can help plan production. He compared it to a savings account, so that when more grains are needed than were produced, the bank could be drawn from in an emergency.

Conversely, when production is high and price is low, the grains can be stored away to help raise prices.

"This is what happened to former agriculture secretary Clifford Hardin. He thought the corn blight was going to have a bigger impact than it did, and so increased production," he said.

Funds Asked To Help Save Old City Hall

The Nebraska State Historical Society newsletter has made a special plea for funds to aid the Lincoln-Lancaster County Historical Society in its effort to preserve the old City Hall building.

The newsletter notes that $800 is needed to match a grant from the National Trust for Historic Preservation which would allow an architectural study of possible uses of the building.

The article calls attention to the fact that the Crowell Mansion in Blair was "lost to bulldozers" earlier this year and "a similar fate may be in store for the former Lincoln City Hall constructed 1874-79 from designs provided by two of the most influential American architects of the last century, Alfred B. Mullett and William Appleton."

Herds Exposed In 19 Counties To Cattle Disease

Cattle herds in 19 Nebraska counties have been exposed to an infectious irritation called psoroptic scabies, a University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension entomologist reported Thursday.

Dr. David Keith said 54 cattle herds in Nebraska have either been treated or are under surveillance for the scabies, caused by mites.

Tracebacks of a herd of scabies-infected feeder cattle brought into Nebraska from Texhoma, Okla., show that exposed herds can be located in these counties: Brown, Cherry, Custer, Dodge, Douglas, Fillmore, Garfield, Holt, Hooker, Howard, Keya Paha, Logan, Loup, Merrick, Rock, Saline, Sherman, Thayer and Wheeler.

State Becomes 'Heir Apparent'

... TO FORT ROBINSON

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Nebraska became the "heir apparent" to historic Fort Robinson in the northwest part of the state Thursday as the Game and Parks Commission agreed to petition the federal government for control of the site.

The commission unanimously adopted the directive which was recommended by Gov. J. James Exon. The commission will thus ask the U.S. Agriculture Department to allow it to assume responsibility for the fort.

The federal government has decided to move a beef production research station from the fort to another location in Clay Center.

The moving process should take approximately three months to complete, Commission Director Willard Barbee said.

Barbee emphasized to the commission that the move is more than just a matter of shuffling papers.

"It's going to mean added responsibilities, such as policing, maintenance and development. There are a lot of details that still need to be worked out," Barbee said.

Together with the State

Historical Society and the University of Nebraska, the commission has been conducting long range studies for development of the site. The plans call for a multi-million dollar recreational complex and renovation of the original buildings, many of which are still intact.

In other action, the commission:

—at the suggestion of Dr. Bruce Cowgill of Silver Creek, approved a directive to the commission's staff to develop a comprehensive program for hunter safety education. The program will focus on providing young hunters with the fundamentals for safe gun handling. The program is to be submitted to the commission no later than its April meeting.

—acknowledged a petition from residents of Creighton for the creation of Grove Lake State Park near Royal. The petitioners asked the commission to move facilities from the inundated Niobrara State Park to the proposed site which the state already owns. The site includes a trout hatchery and a 60-acre lake.

Special Area Okayed For Handicapped

The Game and Parks Commission Thursday allocated some $10,350 for a "unique" recreational area to provide handicapped people with an opportunity to appreciate the outdoors.

The area is called Kildeer Lake and is located about 12 miles southwest of Lincoln. It covers about 70 acres including a 20-acre lake.

The facilities and dock will be designed so that the retarded and handicapped will be able to fish with "reasonable" safety. Special railings, drinking fountains and latrines will be installed for them.

The area was selected because of its proximity to Lincoln and excellent quality fishing, game and parks officials said.

"It will serve those who in this sense we have forgotten," Harold Edwards, division chief, said.

Overton Girl Dies; She Had 3 Transplants

Holdrege (AP) — Janet Scoville, a 13-year-old Overton Junior High School eighth grader who underwent three kidney transplants in the last year, died in Denver Thursday, relatives here have been informed.

She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Scoville, who farm in northern Phelps County and each of whom donated a kidney in the vain attempt to save their daughter's life. The third transplanted kidney came from an accident victim.

The girl came home a month ago but on Dec. 6 she was returned to the University of Colorado Medical Center, where death occurred Thursday morning.

Residents of the surrounding area contributed approximately $14,000 to help the family with medical expenses.

Nebraskans Give Nader's Raiders Letters About FHA Loan Handling

Kansas City, Mo. (AP) — Donald Kucera of Grant, Neb., and Leonard Schmidt of Branson, Neb., have turned over to consumer advocate Ralph Nader's aides about 50 letters of complaint about the Farmers Home Administration (FHA) handling of loans.

Harrison Wellford, introduced as one of Nader's top aides, and Peter Schuck of the Center for Study of Responsive Law, accepted the information and questioned the two Nebraskans about loan problems in the area.

NU, Fair Officials In Accord On Possible Fieldhouse Site

University of Nebraska President D. B. Varner said Thursday evening agreement has been reached between the Finance Committee of the NU Board of Regents and representatives of the State Fair Board on the general area for the NU fieldhouse authorized by the 1971 Legislature.

The facility would be located in the vicinity of the present hog barn facility on the fairgrounds near the downtown

Lincoln campus, Varner said. The Legislature authorized the structure when it passed LB87, raising the state cigarette tax five cents a pack and earmarking most of the money to be split between the fieldhouse and a new state-of-the-art building.

Varner said the two groups will meet again within 30 days to determine what additional steps should be taken.

He said the agreement was reached at the initial meeting of the two groups Thursday.

Political And Labor Interests Cited As Causes Of Low Farm Incomes

By United Press International

Congress could add millions of dollars to the nation's farm and ranch incomes without costing taxpayers a cent if the solution was not prevented by political and labor interests, the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation said Thursday.

In its publication, "The Midland View," the federation said Congress "has permitted such remedial legislation as the Emergency Protection Act of 1971 to languish for months in a Senate sub-committee" while recent transportation strikes have cost farmers "at least half a billion dollars."

The federation said since up to one-fourth of U.S. farm production is exported in a good year, "it is obvious what happens when such exports are artificially bottled up by labor interests" such as the longshoremen's strike.

Exports-Price Link

"It has been estimated that current disastrously low feed grain prices could be 10 to 15 cents per bushel higher if normal exports had prevailed this past five months," the publication said.

Other legislation which is being delayed, the federation said, is the proposed agricultural marketing and bargaining act, which would establish procedures under which processors would be required to negotiate with qualified associations representing commodity producers.

"Despite the fact that this bill has the sponsorship of 86 U.S. representatives and 15 senators, it undoubtedly faces delays in the next session," the article said.

Head-On Collision Is Fatal To Couple From Beatrice

Beatrice — A head-on two-car crash on Highway 136 and 4 one and a quarter miles east of here resulted in the deaths of a Beatrice couple Thursday afternoon and serious injuries for a Filley woman, Gage County Sheriff Fred Steinkamp said.

Tot May Undergo Kidney Transplant Across Nebraska

Omaha (AP) — A kidney transplant may be the only hope for an infant born Oct. 31, University of Nebraska Medical Center specialists have decided. But a transplant on someone as young as Robbie has never been performed successfully.

The child's parents, who live in Omaha, asked that their surname not be used because of the phone calls this might bring.

Doctors said the child has malformed and partly obstructed kidneys that are incapable of clearing his blood stream.

The doctors said medical literature shows only 14 transplants attempted involving infants, and some of those involved using an infant organ to transplant into an older child.

The doctors have been able to start Robbie on a kidney dialysis program and they believe he is the youngest person ever to be fitted with permanent plastic tubes for dialysis.

The success of dialysis and the successful kidney transplants that Dr. James Baden of the NU staff has done on puppies give the doctors hope that a transplant for Robbie can be successful.

Doctors said they will go ahead with a transplant as soon as they can obtain an adequate donated organ, which would have to come from a child weighing 25 pounds or less.

When that might be, no one can tell, the doctors said. The most likely donor would be an infant who died from birth defects not involving the kidneys, they said.

"We know what Robbie's chances are, even with a transplant," said his mother adding that she and her husband waited six years for Robbie's first child.

"God has let Robbie live this long," she continued. "We feel a transplant would offer him a chance to live, and we should take that chance."

$50 Million Budget Approved By OPPD

Omaha (AP) — Directors of the Omaha Public Power District (OPPD) have approved a 1972 construction budget of $50,310,000, including $12,198,000 for revamping the Jones Street Power plant in Omaha to meet the standards of the Omaha Air Quality Control ordinance.

M. M. Meyers, OPPD president, said the budget contains $35,961,000 for new power production facilities, $21,725,000 for the Fort Calhoun Nuclear Power Station, and 32,038,000 to complete the 108,000-kilowatt gas-turbine installation in Sarpy County.

The construction budget is almost identical with the 1971 construction budget of $50,560,000; but well below the 1970 and 1969 budgets of $61,534,000 and $58,253,000 respectively.

The Fort Calhoun nuclear plant, a 457,000-kilowatt producer, will represent an investment of $163,134,000 when completed, Meyers said.

But he added that OPPD's latest study shows that the district will have $10 million each year in fuel costs during the first seven years the plant is in operation. OPPD has a firm price contract on uranium fuel for the plant's first 4½ years of operation.

Big Red Ranks Number One With Nebraska News Editors

By The Associated Press

The unbeaten, untied efforts of Nebraska's Big Red football team, which earned the Huskers the Big Eight Championship and the regular season mythical national football title also earned the votes of Nebraska's newspapers editors and broadcast news directors as the number one story of the year in Nebraska.

A total of 24 of 39 first place votes in the annual Nebraska Associated Press Top Ten stories poll went to Bob Devaney's Huskers who face Alabama in the Orange Bowl on New Year's night in an effort to capture the No. 1 national ranking for the second consecutive year.

The voters gave Big Red a whopping 336 points on a scale which assigned 10 points to a first place vote, 9 to a second place vote, etc.

The number two story, the murder of 12-year-old Allen Schmidt of Omaha and the stabbing of his 10-year-old brother, Leslie, as they sold candy for the Bancroft School PTA, drew two first place votes and a total of 196 points in the voting.

Nebraska's legislative sessions regularly finish high in the top 10 story balloting. The 1971 session — the first annual session under a new constitutional amendment mandate — was good for third place with five first place votes and 161 points. It was a session marked

Speedup Training At Creighton Studied

Omaha (AP) — Curriculum changes that would speed up the training of physicians, dentists, pharmacists and nurses at Creighton University will be proposed within 60 days, the chairman of a curriculum study committee said Thursday. Dr. Andrew Hahn said his group also is seeking ways to bring more members of minorities into the health sciences.

by an unusual number of gubernatorial vetoes and pressure by Gov. J. J. Exon to keep sales and income tax rates from reaching new heights.

An off-shoot of the session, the increase in state cigarette taxes from 8 to 13 cents a package, rated fourth in the balloting with one first place vote and 159 points. Coach Bob Devaney of Nebraska's champion football team made an extraordinary personal appearance before lawmakers in session assembled. The Unicameral responded by enacting, over Exon's veto, a bill which earmarks most of the added revenue for a new coliseum-fieldhouse at the University, and the long proposed state office building.

Rated fifth, with one first place vote and 150 points, was the Harold Strode story which "broke" last year when the former state welfare director, along with a former federal official, Dr. Bradley P. Neer, were indicted for defrauding the state of $38,500. Strode, who earlier had dropped from sight, was located in 1971, working for a carnival in Colorado Springs, Colo. He was tried, convicted and sentenced to prison. Dr. Neer pleaded guilty and also drew a prison term.

The blizzards which struck Nebraska in January, February and March, with emphasis on the past New Year's blizzard which crippled transportation and caused numerous deaths ranked sixth in the balloting with one first place vote and 148 points.

Coming in seventh was the flooding which struck northeast Nebraska in February, inundating many communities and much farmland. That story won one first place vote and 119 points in the balloting.

The eighth-place ranking went to the economic plight of Nebraska's farmers, faced with declining corn prices and a near-record harvest. That story garnered one first place vote and 117 points.

In ninth place was the issue of obscenity, pornography, topless dancing and prostitution which caused headlines across the state and featured bare bosoms from Omaha to Fremont to Central City to Scottsbluff. The issue got no first place votes, but rode into the tally with 113 votes.

Tenth place went to the trial of David Rice, 23, and Edward Poindexter, 26, who were convicted of first degree murder in the 1970 booby-trap bomb slaying of Omaha Patrolman Larry D. Minard. The trial earned one first place vote and 91 points.

One first place vote also went to the highway fatality toll which surpassed the record of 452 deaths set in 1968. But the story only earned a total of 77 points, well below the 91 points which went to the 10th-ranked story.

Voting editors and news directors mentioned 23 other stories in their ballots, but only three received more than 50 points in the totals.

The shake-up in the University of Nebraska administration garnered 74 points, the refusal of NU to renew the contract of Stephen Rozman and subsequent court action received 58 points and the arrest of two women on charges of stealing a baby from an Omaha hospital earned 51 points.

New College Is Aimed At Needs Of Urban Students

By TOM BRETTINGEN
Associated Press Writer
Minneapolis-St. Paul — Minnesota's newest state college will bypass the traditional campus and faculty in hopes of providing a more direct route to the special needs for urban students.
Students will meet in libraries, factories, banks, churches, parks and other facilities already available in the community.
In places of instructors devoting their adult years to academic life, there will be part-time faculty from the community sharing their expertise and knowledge.
More important, students will not be taking Political Science 6 or Social Science 15 as they work toward their bachelor's degrees. No credit hours will be counted or grades recorded.

Students will sign individual contracts with the college setting out their educational and vocational goals, then select a general field and proceed to study how, when and under whom they wish.
The goal of the Metropolitan State College, authorized by the 1971 Minnesota Legislature, and a unique institution in the nation, will be to give students an understanding of how to live and function successfully in large urban areas.
"We're trying to make them something other than passive recipients of what society hands out, which is leaving them apathetic, alienated and angry," said Dr. David E. Sweet, president of the college.
A husky man with nonstop enthusiasm, the 38-year-old educator serviced two years as a vice chancellor of the State College Board and was instrumental in planning the newest college in the seven-college system.

Innovative Project
In the college's administrative headquarters — sprawling, unfinished corner separated by glass walls from the rest of a modern St. Paul bank building — Sweet talked recently about the innovative project.
Of the 1.8 million persons in the Twin Cities metropolitan area, he said, those which the upper division college is interested in serving are adults who have dropped out of other colleges, acquired the equivalent of the first two years of college through work or other experience, or transferred from the six metropolitan area junior colleges.
That group by definition will be made up mainly of housewives, service veterans, minority group members and working persons who would like to further their education in general and job skills in particular.

recruit instructors from the community.
The average community instructor teaching five hours a week will be paid $2,000 — equivalent to the average $16,000 faculty salary paid on 12-month contracts in the state college system.
Odd Hours
They'll teach at odd hours, when the working students aren't at their jobs. They'll share their particular expertise with students who plan to specialize in their field or who want only to be able to relate that field to the rest of their urban environment.
It is this that makes Metropolitan State College unique. Empire State in New York and Chico State in California are "colleges without walls," but neither is set up to provide an education as individualized as MSC's Sweet said.
"We aren't talking about recent graduates who have never held a job," Sweet said. "We're talking about people who are over 22 and employed already."
Sweet is convinced that students carrying degrees from his college will be competitive in the employment market.
"We'll be able to provide the prospective employer with a detailed description of the student's skills, capacities — what he's done," he said.

"Instead of a piece of paper with a few mysterious courses and perhaps some grades, we'll have the assessment of a committee that's been working with this student for a long time.
"It won't show his grades. It will show his real competencies as they relate to doing the job."
A student will be awarded his degree when he can demonstrate these competencies, measured by tests, evaluations by panels of professional people and records of work and achievements.

The college plans to charge $350 tuition a year plus fees, the same as for other colleges in the system.
Federal Aid Expected
The $300,000 appropriated by the legislature, plus $200,000 from tuition over two years, amounts to about half the $1 million Sweet estimates the college will need for the biennium. The rest, he is confident, will come from federal assistance and one time grants.

Likewise, he foresees no problem in gaining accreditation.
A pilot program with 200 students is scheduled to begin Feb. 1 and the regular start with 500 students will follow July 1.

Cash Registers Ring In Town Of Bethlehem

By MICHAEL GROSS
Bethlehem (AP) — Christmas bells toll in joy to celebrate the birth here of Jesus Christ.
Cash registers ring in another tone of joy, symbolic of the birth of prosperity in Bethlehem.
The town of 15,000 Arabs is enjoying a tourist boom and gaining a reputation as an industrial and commercial center. Besides the industries which produce souvenirs for the 50 busloads of tourists who visit Bethlehem daily, other entrepreneurs are busy turning out textile goods, furniture, marble and olive-wood products, cigarettes and wine.
Hundreds of Arab women work at home producing embroidery for Jerusalem shops.
No Unemployment
Unemployment is unknown in this Judean hilltop community just south of Jerusalem. There is a shortage of labor because some workers prefer employment inside Israel where they earn higher wages.
Bethlehem is part of the Jordanian west bank, occupied by Israel since the 1967 war. The cease-fire of August 1970 brought a wave of tourism to Israel and the boom has embraced Bethlehem.

Israeli sources estimate that about 300,000 tourists have made the short journey from Jerusalem to Bethlehem this year.
Elias Fgeij, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce and owner of a souvenir shop says business is good "from Jan. 1 to Dec. 31."
Could Be Better
Freij thinks business could be even better. He complained that the Israeli guides rush visitors through Bethlehem.
"The tourists don't come only to see our churches," he said. "They want to spend time in town, too. But the guides herd them like sheep and they don't have enough time to buy."
Another complaint involves hippie visitors.
"We are a conservative people," he explained. "They come and they don't understand our customs. Maybe they can kiss in the streets of Rome or Tel Aviv, but here these acts are irritating."
A tourism official noted at this point: "Today's hippies are tomorrow's spending tourists."

Positive Impact
"Educating and turning loose these kinds of individuals in urban areas has to have a positive impact on those areas," Sweet said.
Doing the educating, he said, will be a band of "committed amateurs and well-trained professionals."
The professionals, with full academic credentials, will counsel the students and

Minibuses Mark Record $706 Weekly Profit

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln Transportation System (LTS) deposited a record $706 weekly profit in the bank last week for the operation of the city's four minibuses, Jerald Rae said Thursday.

The LTS general manager told the LTS Board that average weekly receipts from the Mini-Line gradually have increased from 1350 since the city took over the buses in October.

The increase is due to a rise in passengers and charter service.

Disturbance Forces Tech To Shut Early For Holiday

Omaha (P) — Due to a disturbance during the lunch hour, which spread to most of the school, Omaha's Tech High School will be closed Friday and all weekend activities cancelled, Principal Odda Bradley announced.

Since the holiday vacation would start after classes Friday and in the best interest of the students we thought it best to close the school one day early," he said.

Tech High School games with Ryan Friday and Central Saturday will be rescheduled.

Sam Crawford, Tech junior high principal, said his school also will close Friday.

Bradley said, "the disturbance, created by a few students, started in the cafeteria and spread into the library. In a short time most of the school was affected. One

Tech High student, Patricia Cullum, was severely cut on the right leg by broken glass and taken to the hospital.

Nixon Schedules State Of Union Speech Jan. 20

Washington (P) — White House sources said Thursday President Nixon plans to address a joint session of Congress at 12:30 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 20.

The address will be the annual State of the Union message. In recent years, the messages have been delivered at night when they have a larger radio and television audience.

Congress plans to convene its 1972 session on Jan. 18.

was a thousand dollars under the lowest appraisal of similar buses, Wood noted. The lower price was possible because the city agreed to place advertising on the rear of the vehicles.

He said the ads will remain on the buses "for life" — which will be about eight years.

Wood added that he realized that the advertising on the buses is contrary to previous board decisions which have banned ads on the city's other buses. Wood said that Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf agreed to the advertising bulletins to save $4,000 on the purchase of the Mini-Line.

'Little Uneasy'

Board member Mrs. Jim Gauger said this decision made her a "little uneasy." She said she was worried over the possible precedent this action would set when the city receives its new 36-bus fleet next spring.

Wood replied that there is no implication that in the future the city will approve advertising on its buses.

Rae also reported that the LTS has accumulated a $22,973 deficit during the month of October.

According to the LTS statement of income and expenses, LTS took in $42,883 during October, with $39,703 of that amount received from passenger revenue. Of the total operating expenses, $85,862, $17,583 was spent in repairing the old buses, $23,663 was spent in drivers' wages and $7,617 was lost on depreciation.

The LTS board discussed hiring a professional public relations firm to "sell" the use of the new buses to the public. Mrs. Gauger said she has talked with several firms and found that up to $7,500 would be needed for such a service and for advertising expenses. Any expenditure of funds will need City Council approval.

Better Shape

While waiting for the new bus fleet, Rae reported that the city's old buses are in better shape today than they were a year ago. Currently, 32 buses are running the routes, plus the four minibuses.

Rae said he has been checking the buses on a daily basis and has discovered, "they are running on schedule — almost to the minute."

He added that the biggest complaint he receives on the bus line's operation is that buses "pass people by." He explained that this happens usually at 6:15 in the morning and at 7:30 at night when the drivers are unable to see the prospective passengers.

In other action the board inaugurated a health plan service for LTS employees which will require an initial physical examination, with a once-a-year check-up thereafter.

No More Nudes

Footlights & Canvas

BY PHYLLIS WOOLLEN

Good morning:

Sometimes in the nooks and crannies we find the most interesting things. We can't exactly put the Haymarket Gallery in a nook or a cranny category but it still is a somewhat undiscovered phenomenon.

The Gallery which is located in charming quarters in the Lincoln Hotel is a unique, small nonprofit gallery for viewing, buying and renting. It serves as a promotion for artists in Lincoln and surrounding areas.

Haymarket was founded by Mrs. Bennett S. Martin three years ago to "provide an area display for Nebraska's potential Picassos and Rembrandts." The small cost for purchase of rental of the works serves to support the gallery and hopefully provide scholarships for talented students in Lincoln's high schools.

The endeavor has only recently sought support of Lincolinites to help retain its efforts. Gallery classes are to resume again in the spring.

The exhibits include all forms of art from jewelry and ceramics, to oils and acylces. Beginning on Dec. 12 through Jan. 1, the featured artist will be John Soulliere with his batiks.

The gallery is well worth a visit, whether you are shopping or just gazing. The atmosphere is friendly and intimate and needless to say, a needed commodity in Lincoln.

Now, for your further entertainment:

CINDERELLA'S FRIENDS the Haasmouse Family, a charming mouse family, tell the tale of Cinderella when she was very young and left all alone at Christmas. The story is told by the Lincoln Community Playhouse Puppeteers this preholiday season at 18th and L Sts. The show, which is a treat for the entire family, will open tonight Dec. 17th and continue through Sunday. The evening performances are at 7:30 p.m. the Saturday performance is a 2:30 matinee.

FIVE ARTIST . . . of the Lincoln Artist's Guild are currently exhibiting their works at the Cengas Building. The artists include Jean H. Ceraolo, who deals in representational acrylics; Grayce Batson, who has included painting of flowers in her works; Beulan Knox, who favors portraits and animals; Ethel Myers, who paints in a meticulous and realistic manner; and Wilma Lyman who leans toward landscapes. The exhibit will be open through January 4.

FOR ALL AGES . . . "A touch of Magic", an original and enchanting holiday play by Royal Eckert is showing at the University of Nebraska Howell Theatre. This is the final weekend, and there are performances tonight through Sunday. Showtime is 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday, and 2:30 on Sunday.

EVIL LURKS . . . in the villains hearts as the Mud Slim Slide Players put an old-fashioned melodrama entertainment on Friday and Saturday night. This is the last weekend in December for the current show, but it will reopen the second weekend in January. The performances include two short melodrama farces, a one-act play, a dramatic recitation and a melodrama version of "Goldilocks and the Three Bears". Shows begin at 9 o'clock at the Gas Light Theatre, 322 South 9th St.

CHRISTMAS FAIR . . . The Sheldon Art Gallery art shop will wind up its annual fair on Thursday, Dec. 23. There is a wonderful selection of handmades, including pottery, candles, ceramics, jewelry, prints, neckties and aighans. The shop is open during gallery hours.

E. Whitehead, treasurer, Mr. and Mrs. John Dean, publicity and Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth Fijan.

Lincoln also is losing Elray Neiman who, after commencement ceremonies at the University of Nebraska on Sunday, will be Dr. Neiman and Mrs. Neiman.

Mr. and Mrs. Neiman will be moving to Indianola, Iowa, where Mr. Neiman, who will receive his doctorate in empthomology on Sunday, is to be the field representative for the NorAM Agriculture Products, Inc.

ABBY: feet, assets frozen

DEAR ABBY: My husband has a habit of making big plans and then at the last moment, he changes his mind. For instance: For months he had me out looking for a new home, telling me if I found anything interesting he would look at it. We finally narrowed it down to one house. My husband saw it and said it was perfect. He made an offer on it, and gave the realtor a check which he told him to hold a week before depositing.

In the meantime, his offer was accepted, the wife of the man who was being transferred quit her job, the realtor got a man lined up to give us a loan on our present home to make a down payment, and I was walking on air. Then my husband changed his mind.

A month ago my husband did exactly the same thing with a new car I am getting batty from his sudden changes of mind.

One time he actually had a double door refrigerator developed, and cancelled it after all my friends had seen it.

I am 47 and he is 52, and we've been married 3 years, so we aren't kids.

Will you please tell me what is the matter with this man? He has disappointed me so many times.

told "LONELY" whose husband was in Korea to keep writing to him every day even tho she doesn't hear from him that regularly.

My husband was in Korea in the 1950s and I used to get very lonely and depressed if I didn't get a letter from him every day, too. Well, I did what "Lonely Wife" is considering, but I urge her NOT to. I decided to quit writing to my husband for a few days to give him a taste of his own medicine. I did this several times, and each time, within a few days, I would receive two and three letters in one delivery. I later learned that their mail is not picked up nor delivered daily over there.

After my husband came home he told me there had been days when he had not heard from me, even tho I knew I had mailed a letter every day.

Anyone who has been in the service can tell you that being forgotten at mail call is one of the roughest things a guy has to take.

Opening lead — king of spades.

Some of the most difficult plays in bridge are really quite simple if you stop to think about them. Consider this deal where West could have stopped declarer from making four hearts had he been slightly more careful.

West led the king of spades, on which East played the three and South the six. Judging from the bidding that declarer had the A-J-6 of spades and that a spade continuation would be fatal, East shifted to the queen of clubs at trick two.

Declarer won with the ace, drew three rounds of trumps, cashed the king of clubs, and led a diamond from dummy. East played the jack, South the king and West the ace, but it now did not matter which suit West played next.

A club return would hand declarer a ruff and discard, a spade return would go right into the A-J, while a diamond return to East's jack would establish South's 10-9 and permit him to discard a spade from dummy. So South made the contract as a result of the endplay position he had achieved.

Tempting though it was for West to win the king of diamonds with the ace, he should have stifled the impulse and played low instead. He should have realized that unless East had the queen of diamonds the contract could not be defeated, and he should have defended on that basis by ducking the king.

Had he done this, the contract would have gone down the flue. Whenever declarer got around to leading diamonds again, East would win with the queen and speedily return a spade. South would then wind up taking second money, losing two spades and two diamonds to go down one.

Answers To Beauty Questions

Josephine Lowman

Q. Some exercises make me feel dizzy. For instance, the one when I make circles with my head. Is something wrong with me?

A. People differ in this way. You might try circling first in one direction and then the other. I do not think you have to worry if this is the only time you feel dizzy. If you experience this at other times you should see your doctor.

Q. Please tell me about the exercise for the hips you call "the double cross." When I cross one leg over the other and try to touch the floor on the opposite side of my body should I roll over on my hip on that side or keep my back flat on the floor?

A. Let your hips roll from side to side but keep your legs straight.

Q. Does the bust increase in size after the age of 25 without exercising?

A. The average woman has reached full maturity by then. A gain in weight will make the bust larger.

Q. Will olive oil make my legs larger if I rub it on them every single day?

A. No, but it will make them nice and smooth. The only way to enlarge the legs is to increase the size of the calf muscle with exercise or to gain weight.

Q. What do you call a doctor for the bones? I am having some trouble and do not know what kind of a doctor to ask for.

A. A bone specialist is called an orthopedic physician.

Q. I have been wondering lately if I am up to par in the date department. I am five feet and four inches tall and weigh 126 pounds. My measurements are 35-28-37 inches. I am fairly large boned and hope that accounts for part of the 126 pounds.

A. There is not much wrong in the date department. The ideal weight for your age and height is 119 pounds. If you have a very heavy frame this would make a difference. You might lose a few pounds and concentrate on exercises for hip slimming. This one gives you a twist at the waist too. Lie on the floor on your back with your arms resting on the floor, extending out from your shoulders, palms toward the floor and your legs straight as you roll from side to side. Roll as far in each direction as you can.

Q. My upper teeth protrude quite a lot and even if they could be fixed I could not afford to have this done, so please do not suggest it. Please tell me what I can do with makeup to make this less noticeable.

A. Emphasize your lower lip with "alive" color, the brighter shades, and extend your lower lip line a bit unless your lower lip is already quite full. Also use eye makeup. Your hairdo should not be severe and should extend below the ears.

on a tour of the shops

Many of us have all of our holiday preparations less than completed — in fact, many things are only half done, including the Christmas shopping.

Offentimes there are a couple of names on that list that create problems for the best of shoppers — finding the perfect gift is next to impossible.

This week we have more gift suggestions that may help to complete your list.

AT MILLER & PAINE

Games make four hours of enjoyment for nearly everyone, as well as providing some form of entertainment for the children on those 'rainy' days when they are home-bound.

The newest in games for ages eight to adult are the Avalon Hill Bookshelf Games — and we've heard that Miller's is the only store in town with this assortment of games calling for intense thought. There are several varieties to choose from, including war games, Shakespeare, the stock market, and railroads — where the players vie to run the best railroad.

Of course, the games of Monopoly and Life remain to be the frontrunners — but then there also are many new games of interest to pre-teens up to adults. The Orion board allows for many games in one. It is for two, three, or four players, and the primary goal is to be the first to match colors and numbers.

The Mystique series contains all of the essentials for witchery and the art of prophecy — including fortune telling cards and instructions for palmistry.

And then there are the games for the younger set. Many of the old-time favorites continue to head the wish-and-want list, but we did find a few new games. One of the most unique on the market for the kiddies is the Peanut Butter and Jelly Game where the players by progressing their men on the board, attempt to be the first to complete a peanut butter and jelly sandwich.

The Pinochle game is another board game that the children just love. It has all of the story's characters and the bad guys, as usual, command their share of penalties.

The do-it-yourself craze has made itself known in most homes as of late. The paint by number sets are great crafts for all ages — with the Last Supper being the most popular. However, there are many more to choose from including flower arrangements, animals, and nature scenes.

Other crafts that we found at Miller and Paine include the Syroco Craft — a paint by letter kit. The kit contains all of the essentials for creating lovely wall hangings.

Many of us have developed a fondness for the metal sculptures that have come into vogue — and now you can create your own accent pieces right in your home with the Fantasy Metal and Metal Art kits.

Other interesting crafts are the Yarnerv Pin Ons for appliques and the Tissue Tones for creating unusual pictures.

AT BOYD JEWELRY

Jewelry rarely fails as a lovely, long-lasting gift.

For milady, we recommend a dinner ring. There are many to choose from at Boyd's and among the most popular this year are those of pearl or onyx. We learned that most women are preferring the more conservative style and the medium-sized variety.

Men, and those shopping for men, are also looking for rings — usually emeralds, cameos, tiger's eye, or rings representing fraternal organizations. The man in your life also would be delighted to find cuff links, tie tacks, key chains or money clips under the tree come Christmas morning.

One of the more unusual pieces of jewelry we found was a beautiful import from Italy. It is a figure hand-painted on ivory and inlaid with diamonds and surrounded by an 18 carat gold mounting. The piece can be used as either a pin or placed on a chain for a necklace. Pins also have returned to popularity and we found a wide assortment at Boyd's, including the brooch with cultured pearls and sapphires in a contemporary design. We were particularly fond of the flowers carved from ivory combined with carved jade — as well as the amethyst and opal combination in a circular pin.

Speaking of jade, we found a lovely 14-carat gold chain bracelet with jade accents.

Of course, Boyd's has much, much more than jewelry. We found quite an assortment of Hummel figurines and music boxes, the Red Head Series of figurines, and many lovely pieces of sterling silver. One of our favorites was the smoked glass party bowl which rests on a silver ring. The container, which comes in two sizes, may be used for a variety of needs — as a container for candies and nuts, as a cigarette or match holder, as a vase, or even as an ashtray.

AT BRANDEIS

Men's toiletries help to create the particular image he wishes to convey — and there are nearly as many varieties of fragrances for men as there are men to wear them.

One of the most popular brands this year is Chanel, which is in cologne and after shave and a case with a combination of both.

Gift assortments of men's toiletries are many and varied. Many contain cologne, after shave, and deodorant or soap on a rope. But, which is one of the all-time favorites, is featured in a travel case which includes lotion, creme shave, after shave talc, after shave soother, and deodorant.

Some new fragrances we found at the men's counters include English Leather, Wind Drift, Success by Nite, British Sterling Gold and Grand Marque, as well as Monsieur Lanvin.

At the Estee Lauder counter we found an entire selection of personal toiletries for men under the name Aramis. In the handy Master Shave Kit, we found three concentrates — pre-shave shave and after shave, and then in the travel kit, which is completed by a leather case is a sample of all the essentials including shampoo, conditioner, creme, and much more. There are many other gift assortments available in this line.

Another new item for men from the makers of Aramis is the Bronzing Stick which will give the natural, suntanned look to any man.

Livestock Officials' Tour Eyes NU Research

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Mead — The Livestock Feeders and Breeders Association, a sort of summit group of Nebraska's livestock organization officials, toured the University Field Laboratory Thursday to see for themselves what kind of research was being done by the university.

Some of the developments exhibited at the Field Laboratory, and others discussed by university people at an afternoon business session, promise to bring about major changes for the livestock producer and for the consumer.

"I expect that one of these days we will see a meat product that we will pop into a toaster and prepare," said Dr.

Roger Mandigo, NU meats specialist.

Mandigo outlined research efforts at NU that are aimed at converting meat trimmings and byproducts into saleable items, other than sausage. "We think we can chop these trimmings and mold them into a sort of instant porkchop that doesn't have a bone which would be a low cost alternative to hot dogs for low income people," he said.

per-head basis when compared to a normal hog ration.

A number of industrial byproducts may end up in livestock feeds, producing lower-cost beef and eliminating a potential pollutant at the same time. A byproduct of the pulp industry shows promise as an additive in liquid feeds and may be better than molasses which is used in nearly all liquid feeds today.

Sheep are able to utilize more of the feed value of corncocks when the corncocks are treated with lye and molasses.

But the lambing percentage dropped in the group of ewes on the ration, according to Dr. Ted Doane.

At the business session, the organization renamed William F. McQuistan of Pender, president; Henry Krivohlavak of Dorchester, vice president; Paul Guyer of Lincoln, secretary; Russell Vanderkolk of Bellwood, director and John Ebersbacher of Seward, director.

Communications Need

Dr. Hazel Anthony, of the College of Home Economics, told the livestock leaders that there was a need for better communications with consumers.

"We have to find a way to motivate the consumer to provide a better, more nutritious diet for her family. We need to know more about what she does and does not know and we should find out what she wants to know about meat quality and how to purchase it," she said.

During the tour of livestock facilities at the Field Lab, the farmers saw hogs that were being raised on a new type of high-protein corn.

Dr. Frank Baker, chairman of the Department of Animal Science said "we are selecting hogs from this group and hogs on a normal ration to determine if it is possible to pick hogs that will do better on this type of corn without supplement."

Researchers told the feeders that there appeared to be about a dollar saving in feeding the new type of corn to hogs on a

Dave Williams, NU Livestock Specialist, Cited

Omaha (UPI) — Dave C. Williams, University of Nebraska extension 4-H livestock specialist, has been presented the distinguished service award from the National Association of Extension 4-H Agents.

Dave Williams

Douglas County Extension Agent Gary Garey, representing the national group, presented the award to Williams at the annual meeting of the Ak-Sar-Ben livestock show executive committee.

Williams, a 18-year veteran of extension work, coordinates 4-H livestock programs, which includes major livestock shows, fairs and judging clinics.

$6,000 Collected For Orange Float

It appears Nebraska will have an entry in the Orange Bowl parade float competition, the float committee indicated Thursday.

Del Snodgrass of the Nebraska Association of Commerce and Industry, which is sponsoring the fund drive along with the University of Nebraska Corn Cobs and Tassels pep groups, said "close to $6,000" has been collected so far from across the state.

He said the committee has set a goal of at least $12,000.

Cary Kuklin of Lincoln and Robert Runice of Omaha committee co-chairmen, said letters and notes accompanying the contributions often demonstrate Nebraskans' pride in the state, the university and the team.

They said an 88-year-old bedridden widow from Franklin said she sent two dollars as her "widow's mite," and wished it could be more because she is "proud of the Cornhuskers and Nebraska."

Pre-Game Rally Being Planned

Tentative plans for a pre-game rally in Florida for all Nebraskans attending the Orange Bowl game were announced Thursday by the University of Nebraska.

Dec. 31 at the NU alumni headquarters at the Salt Ocean Mile Hotel in Fort Lauderdale, from 10 a.m. until noon.

University officials said more details of the rally are to be announced later.

Omaha Indian Jurisdiction Appeal Is Decided By State

The State Justice Department has decided to appeal the recent retrocession decision to the Eighth District Court of Appeals in St. Louis.

Assistant Atty. Gen. Mel Kammerlohr said the notice of appeal was issued Thursday.

The decision handed down earlier this month by Omaha District Court Judge Richard Robinson held the retrocession of legal jurisdiction for the Omaha Indian Tribe from the state to the federal government was valid.

The right to legal retrocession was granted to Omaha by the 1969 Legislature. However, the State Supreme Court held that since only the Omahas were allowed to retrocede and not the other tribes in Nebraska the retrocession was not in accordance with the federal and state agreement.

Then the 1971 Legislature revoked its earlier agreement by passing a resolution nullifying the retrocession.

Under the terms of retrocession, Indian police and jails are used to enforce laws over Indians.

In their case, the Omaha Indians said the agreement was valid and asked that Thurston County officials stop arresting Indians.

Stock Purchase Is Approved By Rail Heads

Richmond, Va. (AP) — A plan for Seaboard Coast Line Railroad Co. to become the sole stockholder of Louisville & Nashville Railroad Co. has been approved in principle by directors of the two companies, SCL said Thursday.

W. Thomas Rice, chairman and chief executive officer of SCL which now owns 98% of L&N's common and preferred stock, announced the two boards have approved in principle the proposal for SCL to acquire the remaining outstanding shares of L&N stock.

Varner Backs Aid To Rural Areas

Present assistance programs must be continued and increased and new programs need to be developed if rural America is going to be developed to its potential, according to University of Nebraska President D. B. Varner.

Varner spoke Thursday night at a dinner at the Community Services to Rural Areas conference.

Varner said that the most important aspects of rural development are establishing and maintaining a reasonable economic level for farmers, increasing employment opportunities and a continued enrichment of the quality of life.

He said that we need to guarantee commercial farm operators a reasonable return on their investments and labor, adding that it is difficult for a farmer to read in the paper that labor is getting $5 to $10 an hour when he makes about $1, if even that much.

Medical care in rural communities is another serious problem, he said. Doctors aren't moving to rural areas because of the lack of cultural and entertainment opportunities and industry doesn't want to locate where there will not be adequate medical care for its employees.

Varner told the group that

58 Lancaster Employees Given Service Pins

Three employees of the Lancaster County Welfare Dept. received 35-year pins as 58 county employees were honored for their service in a Thursday afternoon ceremony.

The three were Louise Hamilton, Phyllis Samuelson and Katherine Alles.

Thirty-four employees received 10-year pins and 11 were given 15-year pins.

Pattavina Rejects Appeal By Loder

Omaha (AP) — Omaha Public Safety Director Al Pattavina rejected James Loder's appeal of his dismissal Thursday as a police patrolman.

In a letter to Loder, Pattavina said no new evidence has been produced to reverse a decision by Police Chief Richard R. Andersen to fire Loder.

Loder was fired Nov. 29 for alleged rule infractions. The appeal to Pattavina was the second step in grievance procedures. Loder's next step would be an appeal to the personnel board.

due to lack of funds the university band and theatrical groups very infrequently are able to put on programs in outstate areas.

But this year with a grant from the National Endowment for Arts, he said, the university was able to take their production of Macbeth into the rural areas and in Cozad which has just over 3,000 residents they drew a crowd of just under 1,000 people.

The NU president said that all the divisions of the university are useful to rural development whether it be the college of agriculture turning out better educated farmers or the college of business administration creating more able business men.

Varner said he hoped that land grant institutions are given an opportunity to serve a role of leadership in the area of rural development.

Leahy To Ask For A Ban On Studded Tires

Omaha (AP) — Mayor Eugene Leahy probably will ask the 1972 Legislature to pass a law banning studded tires, he said Thursday.

He will wait, however, for a report from the Public Works Department on the extent of damage to city streets from the studs before deciding, he said.

Minnesota has banned studded tires and Iowa's safety commissioner has said he will ask the Iowa Legislature for a similar prohibition, Leahy said.

U.S. Financial Structure Overhaul Recommended

The New York Times
By H. ERICH HEINEMANN
Washington — A presidential commission has concluded that the nation's financial structure and the federal agencies that regulate it require a complete overhaul.

If adopted, the commission's recommendations could result in sharper competition, possibly lower prices for consumers, and the gradual disappearance of the present sharp legal distinctions between different types of financial institutions.

The report by the Presidential Commission on Financial Structure and Regulation, informally known as the Hunt Commission for its chairman, Reed O. Hunt, retired chairman of the Crown Zellerbach Corp., is due to be presented to the White House in a few days. A copy of its recommendations, but not the report itself, was obtained Thursday.

The key problem that led President Nixon to appoint the commission 18 months ago was the feast-or-famine character of the housing industry, which has alternated between boom and depression depending on the availability of mortgage money.

Not surprisingly, the commission proposes the broadest surgery for thrift institutions — savings and loan associations and savings banks — specializing in home finance. Among the commission's recommendations are the following:

—“Under specified conditions, savings and loan associations and mutual savings banks (should) be permitted to provide third-party payments services, including checking accounts and credit cards, to individuals and non-business entities only.”

—Thrift institutions should be allowed to “make secured and unsecured consumer loans in amounts not to aggregate in excess of 10% of total assets.”

—Savings associations and savings banks should “be permitted to manage and sell mutual funds, including commingled agency accounts, subject to regulation by the Securities and Exchange Commission.”

—The federal government should charter mutual savings banks, allowing them to operate in all 50 states, rather than only 18 as at present. In addition, the government should charter mutual commercial banks—that is, banks owned by their depositors—and at the same time charter federal savings and loan associations with the power to issue capital stock. All federal associations are required to be mutual today.

In addition, thrift institutions, and especially the savings and loan associations, would get greatly expanded powers to invest in corporate bonds and common stock. At the same time, the tax preferences that savings associations and banks now enjoy—to spur their investment in housing—would be removed as they broadened their power.

The effect of this broad package of recommendations, plus many others of a more technical nature, would be a basic challenge to the concept of financial specialization—the idea that institutions that confine their activities largely to accepting savings deposits and making mortgage loans can best meet the nation's need for home financing.

The Hunt Commission concluded, in effect, that far from helping to supply mortgage credit, financial specialization has contributed to its periodic shortages.

The thrift institutions, with the bulk of their assets invested in long-term mortgages, have not been able to adjust readily to periods of rapidly rising interest rates. As the yield on alternative forms of investment have risen above what the banks could afford to pay to their depositors, they have suffered massive outflows of funds, which has cramped their ability to make loans.

Whether the commission's approach is the correct one to solve this problem is highly controversial. With the exception of Lane Kirkland, secretary-treasurer of the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations, the other 18 members of the commission were unanimous in their report.

91 Suggestions
Among its 91 major recommendations, the commission also had the following to say:

—The power to set interest rate ceilings on bank deposits of more than $100,000 should be abolished entirely. At the present time, these interest rate ceilings are suspended only for deposits of from 30 to 89 days' maturity.

—The Federal Reserve Board should be required, after a waiting period of five years, to abolish the interest rate differentials between accounts offered by thrift institutions and those offered by commercial banks—for example, the 5% rate that savings associations and banks are allowed to pay on passbook savings accounts and the 4½% rate allowed to commercial banks on such deposits.

The commission also made a number of recommendations to require greater reporting and disclosure by major trust companies.

The custom of giving presents at winter festivals existed before Christ's birth. The Romans gave branches of olive, laurel and myrtle—symbolic of happiness, affection and health, to their rulers. They also gave “good luck” gifts to their friends. The rich gave to the poor during the Saturnalia. These customs were part of the origin of our present day practice of gift-giving at Christmas time.

Farmers Becoming Concerned About Dock Strike, Says Phillips

Nebraska farmers are becoming increasingly concerned about export losses caused by dock strikes on the west coast, said the chairman of the Nebraska Wheat Advisory Committee.

Arlee Phillips, of Hemingford, said, "when you consider a wheat carryover expected to be the largest since 1963, then top it off with an expected loss of 50 million bushels in exports due to the strikes, this can only result in lower wheat prices for our farmers."

"We hope that ways can be found for dock workers to continue to handle grain and other cargo while negotiations are going on," he said.

The committee last week met with two officials of the marketing organization for Nebraska wheat, Great Plains Wheat, Inc. (GPW).

Work Being Undone?

Joseph Halow, GPW executive vice president, told the committee, "producers are afraid that much of their more than a decade of work in building overseas markets for wheat is being nullified by the dock strikes and are urgently calling for a quick solution to the perennial problem."

"The most damaging effect of any dock strike on our wheat exports is that it weakens our ability to assure constant supplies to our foreign customers," Halow said.

GPW president Dean Parsons of Wall, S.D., recently visited six markets in the Far East. He said storage capacities there are adequate for a maximum of only 45 days.

"In each country, wheat buyers told us they were forced to look to other sources because they do not have sufficient storage capacity to carry them while the United States works out its labor problems," Parsons said.

Dock workers on the coast are presently working under a mourt injunction allowed by the Taft-Hartley Act. The 90-day injunction expires Dec. 25, at which time there is a threat the strike will resume, according to Halow.

Halow said the Japanese Food Agency and other buyers are reluctant to make purchases now for January and February delivery.

State Setting Utility Rates Opposed Again By League

The League of Nebraska Municipalities reaffirmed Thursday its opposition to any legislation that would give any state regulatory body authority to set rates for municipal utilities.

The reaffirmation action was taken by the League's legislative committee meeting in Lincoln, according to Executive Director Del Rasmussen.

Rasmussen said a recent League poll showed 69 cities favored local rate-setting control over sewer, water, electric and gas utilities while only 10 favored state regulation and six proposed some other kind of control, like a consumer protection agency.

The league also called for $7.4 million in state aid during the next fiscal year for secondary sewage treatment facilities.

Approximately $6 million was appropriated for the current fiscal year to provide a matching formula of 50% federal, 25% state and 25% local funding. Cities with comprehensive plans may obtain 55% federal funding, reducing their share to 20%.

U.S. Bank Plans Jamaica Branch

San Francisco (AP) — The Bank of America says it has received Federal Reserve Board approval to form a merchant bank in the Caribbean island of Jamaica.

The bank, largest commercial bank in the world, said Thursday it would initially own and control 100% of the stock in Jamaican American Merchant Bankers Ltd.

But it said during the first five years of operation it expects a major portion of the stock to be made available to Jamaicans.

Soil, Water Conservation Group Opposes Reorganization

The Nebraska Soil and Water Conservation Commission Thursday went on record in opposition to a pending legislative bill which would change the commission's name and alter its composition.

The bill, LB542, was introduced into the 1971 session and held over for consideration in the session beginning next month.

The measure would replace the commission with a board of natural resources to include three members appointed by the governor and a dozen directors of Natural Resource Districts (NRD).

The NRD program was begun by the 1969 Legislature and altered by the 1971 session and the proposed 24 NRD's are scheduled to become operative next July 1.

"We believe that sufficient problems will be presented in the initial operation of NRD's to acquire the knowledge and experience of the people most familiar with the NRD concept, the commission itself," said a statement adopted unanimously Thursday at a commission meeting.

"A reorganization at the state level could, in our opinion, seriously hamper district reorganization by forcing the commission to devote most of its time to internal reorganization efforts."

Commissioners Thursday also decided to ask the Legislature to enact LB600, another pending bill, with a provision deleted in the 1971 session.

The provision taken out of the bill would provide state enforcement of the flood plain management program be charged to local subdivisions who refuse to act.

"We would like to have direction to try to locate a senator willing to attempt to get this provision back into LB600," said the commission statement.

Sioux Get $145,000 For Development

By United Press International

State Indian Commission Director Robert Mackey has announced the Santee Sioux Indian tribe has been awarded a $145,000 federal economic development grant.

Mackey said notification of the awarding came through the office of U.S. Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb.

The money will be used to build a public camping facility on the reservation, the director said, with construction scheduled to begin in 60 days.

It is anticipated, once completed, the facility would furnish employment for two skilled Indian workers and 18 unskilled workers.

Mackey said the project is tied in with a number of other tourism related projects to be built on various reservations, and he said similar grants may be made to other Nebraska tribes.

The Santees, located in Knox County, were one of five tribes designated to receive funds initially, he said.

Next summer, Mackey reported, the sites developed will be used in a tourism development program for persons visiting this country from Germany.

They will visit the various sites developed through the federal economic development project, Mackey said, and he added it is hoped others will also visit them.

"We hope to corner some of these American tourists too," the director said.

Lemkau Fund Total $688; Not As Large As Expected

York (UPI) — Contributions to the Jerry Lemkau fund total $688, the York Jaycees announced Thursday.

The accounts at the First National Bank and the York State Bank are not as large as had been expected, according to Dave Bell, chairman of the York Jaycees-sponsored drive.

Lemkau is suffering from cancer and has not been employed since last August when he had to leave his job with the York Packing Co. to take daily treatments at Omaha.

The treatments cost $55 for each two minutes and Lemkau's health insurance terminated after 13 weeks of coverage.

Lemkau and his wife, Marilyn have four children, the oldest 12 years of age.

The Jaycees said a chili feed will be held from 6-9 p.m. Wednesday night at the York City Auditorium.

Fire Marshal Says Majority Of Jails Unsafe

By TIM AHERN, AP
State Fire Marshal Joe Pluta said Thursday his office will soon begin ordering municipalities and counties around Nebraska to improve safety features at local jails.

The "vast majority" of the state's approximately 225 jails don't meet minimum safety standards, Pluta said. He estimated only 39 jails comply with the state safety guidelines.

Pluta said his officers will begin conducting a series of investigations within the next two weeks into safety features at the jails and "we expect to issue a lot of compliance orders."

In most cases, the county or municipality will be given 90 days to correct deficiencies, Pluta said.

The life safety code adopted by the 1969 Legislature provides for 24-hour supervision of inmates along with a "reliable means of access" in the event of an emergency.

"But there are a lot of situations where a jailer goes home at 5 p.m. and doesn't come back until the next morning," Pluta said.

He predicted some smaller municipal jails will be forced to close and will transfer their prisoners to county jails.

A 1970 survey done for the State Crime Commission cited safety deficiencies in many jails and Pluta explained he bases many of his contentions on the results of that study, done by Mrs. Marie Arnot of the State Economic Development Dept.

"In most of the cases, the deficiencies are due either to lack of 24-hour supervision or to lack of a means of access," he said.

Should county or municipal governing boards refuse to live up to a compliance order, Pluta said, he could go to the county attorney to seek compliance.

NPPD To Decide On Site For New Plant In January

A Nebraska Public Power District spokesman said Thursday a decision may be made by mid-January on the location of a new power plant.

Don Schaufelberger, an NPPD assistant General manager, said sites under consideration for the plan, estimated to cost in the $150 million range, are Grand Island, North Platte and Bridgeport.

He said assuming the site decision is made that soon, the district may be looking to the bond market in 1972 or 1973 for financing.

Factors to be studied in deciding location, Schaufelberger said, include the availability of resources, type of cooling system and freight prices.

Best Football, It's Big 8, SEC

After this season, the last of those Eastern diehards, who still were clinging to the thought that Eastern football was among the best, are ready to admit that it's not. And you can even include Penn State coach Joe Paterno in that group—if not now, at least after Texas gets through with his Nittany Lions.

And even those Big Ten diehards, who don't want to admit it, are going to have to admit that their football is or has been slipping.

It would take a fool, of whom there are many I guess on the West Coast and in the Big Ten area, to argue that the best football is not now being played in the Big Eight and in the Southeastern Conference.

If you go on records, and that's not a bad place to start, the SEC and the Big Eight were so dominant in football this season that it was a two-horse race with the SEC and the Big Eight being stakes-class horses and the rest of the country in the claiming division.

In non-conference competition, the SEC won 84.1 per cent of its games on a 37-7-1 log and the Big Eight wasn't far behind with 25-7-1 for 78.1 per cent.

The only other league to win more than half its non-league contests was the Pacific-8 with a 54.1 per cent mark on 20-17-0.

The winning percentages of other conferences in non-conference action were: Western Athletic Conference 47.1 per cent (16-18-2), Southwest Conference 41.4 per cent (12-17-1), Atlantic Coast Conference 38.5 per cent (15-24-0) and Big Ten 34.6 per cent (9-17-1).

The log for the past five years also shows the SEC and the Big Eight far out front with the Big Ten far to the rear.

The five-year log—SEC 74.2 per cent (187-65-7), Big Eight 64.3 per cent (101-56-2), Pac-8 59.5 per cent (118-80-6), WAC 50.3 per cent (94-93-3), Southwest 43.6 per cent (65-84-7), Big Ten 41.4 per cent (70-99-3) and ACC 20.3 per cent (51-129-0).

Bowls To Decide

While overall records provide a good starting point for conference comparisons, the best deciding factor is head-to-head matchups and for the SEC and the Big Eight, that's coming up in the bowls, beginning Saturday.

In the two regular season meetings between schools of the two conferences, the Big Eight owns a 2-0 advantage with Colorado beating LSU 31-21 and Oklahoma State defeating Mississippi State 26-7.

For comparison purposes, the bowl lineup is nearly perfect with the Big Eight's best, Nebraska, going against the SEC's best, Alabama: the Big Eight's second best, Oklahoma, meeting the SEC's second best, Auburn, and the Big Eight's Iowa State meeting the SEC's LSU, both with 8-3 records.

From where we sit it looks like a 2-1 Big Eight decision. With a 24.5 log for 82.8 per cent in the final two weekends of the regular season, including forecasting the exact four-point spread in the Game of The Decade, the regular season log wound up 428-169-7 for a percentage of .714. The bowl games.

Sun Bowl, Dec. 18

LSU 20, Iowa State 16 . . . If the Cyclones could get this one, it could be a big winter for the Big Eight and they could.

Liberty Bowl, Dec. 20

Fiesta Bowl, Dec. 27

ARIZONA STATE 35, Florida State 27 . . . This could be one of the better games in the bowl lineup.

Tangerine Bowl, Dec. 28

TOLEDO 42, Richmond 20 . . . Even in a bowl game, Toledo plays patsies.

Peach Bowl, Dec. 30

GEORGIA TECH 28, Mississippi 21 . . . Another defeat for the Southeastern Conference, but they can laugh all the way to the bank.

Astro-Bluebonnet, Dec. 31

COLORADO 35, Houston 28 . . . This one will be worth being late to your New Year's Eve party.

Gator Bowl, Dec. 31

Rose Bowl, Jan. 1

STANFORD 17, Michigan 14 . . . You can forget about those Stanford losses to Duke and San Jose, the Pacific-8 teams get up for the Big Ten foes in the Rose Bowl.

Cotton Bowl, Jan. 1

TEXAS 35, Penn State 14 . . . if the Longhorns have everyone healthy, they belong in the top five, right behind Nebraska, Oklahoma and Alabama.

Sugar Bowl, Jan. 1

OKLAHOMA 45, Auburn 28 . . . If the Tigers thought the Alabama wishbone-T was unstoppable, wait until they get a look at Oklahoma's. And the best part of the Sooner defense is their pass rush—look out Pat Sullivan!

Orange Bowl, Jan. 1

NEBRASKA 24, Alabama 17 . . . It'll be more of a defensive struggle than was Nebraska-Oklahoma, but the Huskers won a national championship in Miami a year ago and they aren't about to relinquish it on the same grounds.

Plainsmen To Make Home Debut Against Wahoo JFK

By STEVE GILLISPIE
Star Sports Writer

Nebraska Wesleyan's basketball team will play in the friendly confines of Ira J. Taylor Gym at 7:30 Friday night for the first time this season by hosting John F. Kennedy College.

The Plainsmen are 1-5 after a tough road trip which included games with Chicago Loyola, Morningside and North Dakota. The last trio play mostly a major college schedule.

NWU's other games were played in Crete at the Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference's pre-season basketball tournament.

In the last game of the tourney for the Plainsmen, they defeated Midland after dropping two close contests in the first and second round. Concordia edged Wesleyan in overtime in the first round and Luther College of Decorah, Iowa bested NWU in the second round.

JFK will be facing a balanced scoring attack from NWU as all five Plainsmen starters are averaging in double figures.

Starting for Wesleyan at guards will be Riedel Lintz and Lyle Hiatt, at forwards John Strain and Dick French and Mike Renken at center. Renken has been pulling down about 20 rebounds in addition to scoring well.

Coach Irv Peterson indicated Charlie Rine and Dean DeBoer will probably be the first substitutes into the game for NWU.

The Plainsmen have been taking finals this week ending the first semester and are anxious to play in front of a home crowd according to Peterson.

Rozelle Sensitive About OTB Invading Football

... LEADING FIGHT AGAINST LEGALIZED GAMBLING ON HIS SPORT

By MILTON RICHMAN

One of the things he's particularly sensitive about is gambling. Especially in connection with pro football.

This is rather understandable inasmuch as Pete Rozelle makes his living by being commissioner of the National Football League, and it is equally understandable why he would be, and is, highly sensitive about Howard Samuels' operation.

Howard Samuels heads New York's Off Track Betting, or OTB as it's generally called.

OTB has made it possible to place bets on horse races legally without going out to the track. Until last Monday OTB's principal revenue resulted from bets covering flat and harness races taking place on New York tracks. Tropical Park was added Monday by OTB and Laurel was due to get its first play Thursday.

Howard Samuels, who has done a fine job with all this, would like to do much more. He says he'd like OTB to take bets on pro football, baseball, jai alai, tiddledewinks or whatever.

Now that's where Pete Rozelle becomes a little sensitive.

He's not disturbed about any future legalized gambling on baseball, jai alai or tiddledewinks but he is upset about any such operation that would involve pro football games.

"Do you think OTB has a chance with pro football?" Rozelle was asked during an exclusive question-and-answer session with the UPI editorial board.

"Certainly," he said. "That's why I'm so concerned."

Rozelle originally objected to Samuels' plan because he felt it would "enlarge the scope" of bets being made on pro football games already and because he also felt "this thing can only chip away at the integrity of our sport . . ."

Samuels said Rozelle was being "naive."

"If I'm naive, then I'm spending $200,000 of the owners' money every year fruitlessly," says Rozelle now. "Sure, some enforcement officials are for legalized gambling on pro football games. They say 'legalize it.' I don't blame them. It gets them off the hook. Now they don't have to worry themselves about illegal gambling. But we don't want to be the fall guys."

Pete Rozelle's awareness is forever evident, the same way it was some time back when he had reason to believe he was going to enjoy a game at Yankee Stadium in more or less anonymity.

One of the Mara family, which owns the New York Giants, felt Rozelle would like to sit off by himself, so he arranged for a special box on the other side of the field. The box had four seats in it and since Rozelle came with a friend of his, two of the seats were empty.

LOSING TEAMS EYEING TITLE

... NU, LaSalle, Idaho, Baylor Bid In Husker Classic

By MARK GORDON

Star Sports Writer

With the success Idaho and LaSalle have had in their regions of the country, it's understandable why they are anticipating their first trips to Lincoln.

And Baylor, with five triumphs in six starts and host Nebraska at 2-3, would like an opportunity to show continued improvement.

That's the setting for the second annual Husker Basketball Classic which opens Friday at the NU Coliseum. LaSalle, at 1-4, faces Baylor at 7 and Nebraska meets Idaho, which has lost five of six tilts, at 9.

The losers meet at 7 p.m. Saturday and the victors at 9 p.m. Nebraska won last year's initial Classic with wins over Miami, Fla., and Colorado State.

Perhaps the biggest threat to coach Joe Cipriano's bid for a second Classic title, will be a Baylor team that was thought to be crippled by graduation losses.

Coach Bill Menefee's Bears lost their two leading rebounders and three of the top four scorers from last season. Besides that, three junior college transfers and one sophomore are among the team's top seven participants.

Led by 6-1 senior guard Tom Stanton, Baylor has zipped past Oklahoma City, LSU, Abilene Christian, Lamar State and Tulane. The only loss was an opening 94-84 setback to strong Western Kentucky.

Senior 6-7 center Pat Fees, who paced the Southwest Conference with a .667 field goal percentage last season, has given the Bears scoring and rebounding strength. Forward Bobby Thompson at 6-4, 6-2 guard Roy Thomas and imports Chester Green, a 6-3 forward, and Adam West, a 6-5 forward, make Baylor a definite contender for Classic honors.

LaSalle, meanwhile, a perennial Eastern basketball power, has had difficulty replacing graduated all-American Ken Durrett (27 points and 12 rebounds per game) and Bob Fields (22.4 points).

The Explorers of coach Paul Westhead have received balanced scoring from four players. Despite the poor start, the Philadelphians lost their four tilts by a total of 11 points.

Providing the impetus has been 6-6 sophomore Joe DiCocco, with 14 points and 12 rebounds per contest.

Team captain Jim Crawford, a 6-4 junior; 6-4 sophomore Frank Doyle; and 6-3 sophomore Jim Haggarty, all own scoring marks between 12-13 points.

"That's pretty good four-man balance," says Westhead. "But we're still a young team and we're not down because of our poor start."

After losing the top six players from last year's 14-12 squad, Idaho coach Wayne Anderson knew problems might arise this season.

The Vandals opened with a 76-75 triumph over Whitworth, then lost the next five. The team has shot below 40 per cent and has surpassed the 70-point stage only against Whitworth.

"You're always disappointed when you start like this," Anderson says. "But we knew it would take a while until we started to play well."

Marty Siegewin, a 6-7 sophomore who missed the first six games due to eligibility enables Anderson to start just two guards, giving the Vandals aid in the rebounding department — an area which has been sub-par.

Senior 6-2 guard Don Beane and 6-7 junior forward Paul Hardt have been Idaho mainstays.

East Overcomes Slow Start To Topple Pius X, 60-50

By VIRGIL PARKER
Prep Sports Writer

The East High Spartans overcame a serious case of scoring sickness to register a 60-50 intra-city basketball victory over the Pius X Thunderbolts at Pershing Auditorium Thursday night.

Coach Paul Forch's Spartans went the equivalent of one full quarter — from 2:22 to go in the first frame until 2:22 before halftime — without tallying a single point.

In the meantime, coach Don Kelley's 'Bolts came from a four-point deficit at 11-7 to build up a whopping 17-point advantage by scoring 21 straight counters.

But the second half was a complete reversal. It was almost as though someone had strung an invisible wire over the basket at the south end of the court.

While East couldn't get the ball to go through that hoop during the first two quarters, Pius had an equally tough time in the final stanzas.

The Spartans managed but 11 points in the first quarter and eight in the second. The 'Bolts more than matched that frustration by getting 11 in the third and just seven points in the final frame.

The listless East quintet, without the services of 6-4 center Rick Samuelson who is sidelined by a case of mononucleosis, finally got untracked behind the play of guard Jack Ball.

Ball, who led all scorers with 17 points, had 15 of them in the second half.

East blitzed the bucket for 22 counters in the third quarter to trail by just two points going into the fourth period, 43-41.

The comeback surge actually gave the Spartans a momentary 40-39 lead with 1:20 left before the final break.

Then Ball took charge. He tallied East's next nine points while the 'Bolts were held to a single free throw to assure the Spartan triumph.

Pius almost duplicated East's earlier scoring drought. Kelley's crew didn't sink a fielder until the last minute of the fourth quarter.

East's Scott Copple, with two baskets and Chris Siefkes with another, followed Ball's burst of points to give the Spartans 15 points and Pius just one during the first six minutes of the final frame.

It was two completely separate games. All Pius in the first half. East thoroughly dominating the second.

Copple joined Ball in double figures for the winners with 13 points, while Mike Aldrich, with 11, was the only Pius player to reach the twin totals.

Wrestling Legend Gable To Compete In Lincoln

... GREAT PLAINS MEET THIS WEEKEND

What almost could be called a living sports legend will compete in Lincoln this weekend.

Dan Gable, the former Iowa State wrestler who never lost until his final match as a collegian, Wednesday indicated he will participate in the 11th annual Great Plains Wrestling Tournament Saturday and Sunday.

"Only four wrestlers from Iowa State have confirmed they will be here," Great Plains tournament director Newt Copple said, "but in Gable we have the best drawing card we could hope for, just by his very name."

Wrestling fans who attend the two-day tournament at the Central YMCA won't be watching just a Big Eight champion or just a national champion in Gable.

They'll be watching a world champion. Gable earned that title in the 149½-pound class about three months ago in Sophia, Bulgaria.

A month before that he was a Pan-American champion in competition at Cali, Colombia.

Although the world championship was obviously the pinnacle of his illustrious career, Gable's most widely publicized feat came, unfortunately, when he was edged in the NCAA finals his senior year (1970) at Iowa State.

Before dropping that final collegiate match, Gable had won some 180 consecutive matches, including two previous NCAA championships.

A Friday night dual against Navy kept most Iowa State wrestlers from entering the Great Plains tourney, but Gable will be joined by elite Cyclone company in 134-pounder Bill Knight, 150-pounder Doug Moses and 177-pounder John Petersen.

Knight, who swept to six straight victories in winning the 134-pound title last year, was named the tournament's outstanding wrestler. Moses won at 142 last year. Peterson was a world team member last summer.

A number of other schools, including the University of Nebraska, will compete in the tournament, which will divide competition between freestyle (Saturday) and Greco (Sunday) according to Copple.

Freestyle allows more freedom of movement than collegiate or high school competition. Greco disallows a participant to use his own legs or grab an opponent's legs.

Oklahoma, which finished third behind Iowa State and Oklahoma State in last year's Big Eight meet, has entered a 12-man team.

Coach Orval Borgialli's Nebraska entry list includes: Len Dickinson (167), Duane Nelson (177), Russ Kildare (199), Ralph Manning (134), Carl Simmons (142), Roger Faltys (118), Joe Mundorf (190), Chuck Tremain (hwt.), Joe George (167) and Lee Simmons (158).

More entries are expected, Copple indicated. The black mark scoring system of elimination will be used. Competition starts at 9 a.m. Saturday and at 10 a.m. Sunday.

Black Shirts Dominate Big 8 Defensive Stats

... HUSKERS GRAB SIX INDIVIDUAL TITLES

Kansas City, Mo. — Despite its meeting with Oklahoma's wishbone-T offense, Nebraska's Black Shirts managed to hang on to the lead in every Big Eight defensive category, final league statistics show.

In fact, no one is even close to the Huskers in the areas of rushing defense, pass defense, total defense and scoring defense in the Big Eight.

Nebraska also added passing offense to its list of league-leading figures. And individually, the Huskers grabbed six of the 10 statistical titles with Jerry Tagge getting two, Johnny Rodgers three and Dave Mason one.

Tagge led the Big Eight in passing with a 168.3 yards per game average and in total defense with a norm of 194.4 yards.

Rogers was tops in pass receiving with 53 catches for 872 yards, punt returns with 16.6 per return average and kickoff returns with an average of 30.4 yards per runback.

Mason led the league in interceptions with six.

Kearney (P) — Kearney State overcame an early Dakota Wesleyan lead and rolled to a 94-85 basketball victory Thursday night.

The Antelope, trailing 16-5 after the early going, surged to a 41-23 lead before the half and never was in trouble after taking a 46-30 intermission advantage.

Freshman Tom Kropp scored 23 points and Bob Jones 21 as Kearney made its record 3-2. Dakota Wesleyan, paced by Greg Hansen's 24 points is 2-6 for the season.

Magnum Receives Top Honor

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A demolition expert in more ways than one will be in the Colorado line-up Dec. 31 when the Buffs Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl football game.

He's Francis "Bud" Magnum, a defensive guard.

Magnum made more unassisted tackles than any other Buff during the regular season when Colorado posted a 9-2 record and was defeated only by top-ranked Nebraska and third-ranked Oklahoma. He was credited with 39 unassisted stops.

He also had 65 assists for a total of 104 tackles, second only to Randy Geist. He recovered five fumbles.

Of Magnum's tackles, eight were behind the line of scrimmage for a total of 49 yards in losses.

Magnum's performance during the season easily earned him Big Eight Conference sophomore defensive player of the year honors in a vote today of sports writers and sportscasters.

Magnum was the big surprise of the Colorado football team. He did not play freshman football but wasted no time becoming a regular as a sophomore.

Magnum enrolled at Colorado fresh out of the Marines and had played two years of football with the Quantico Marines.

He also served 18 months in Vietnam where he was a demolition expert and won two Purple Hearts and an award for gallantry when he lead a patrol out of an ambush.

Magnum was a high school dropout. He finished his secondary education in the Marines. Some 90 colleges were after him to play football when he was discharged. So were the professional New Orleans Saints and the Washington Redskins.

"My coach in the service, Ed Herring, made me realize how important it was that I get a college education first," says Magnum. "He was the one who encouraged me to go back to school and finish high school in the service. He told me, 'You're going to school, and that's it.'"

Magnum even had to pay his own way for a year at Colorado.

Oklahoma City (P) — Bob Foster scored a technical knock out over Brian Kelly, a 33-year-old Cushing, Okla. youth director, with 1:56 gone in the third round here Thursday night to successfully defend his version of the light heavyweight championship.

Foster knocked Kelly down twice in the second round, then sent him sprawling to the canvas with a left hook in the third round and the fight was called by referee Earle Kell.

The knockout was Foster's 39th in 50 professional fights. It stretched his record to 455, with all of his losses coming to heavyweights.

The fight was the first championship fight ever staged in Oklahoma. In the preliminary bout, 340-pound Claude "Humphrey" McBride scored a third-round TKO over Clyde Brown of St. Louis.

Michigan Defense Ranked First In Rushing, Scoring

... NEBRASKA SECOND AGAINST RUSHING

New York (P) — The Michigan Wolverines are carrying the nation's most potent defense against rushing and scoring into the Rose Bowl game against Stanford Jan. 1.

The Big Ten champion missed by only a fraction of a yard in leading the nation's major colleges in total defense, thus barely failing to make a sweep of defensive honors.

The total defense leader, according to statistics of the National Collegiate Sports Services, was Toledo, the midwest power which has a winning streak of 34 games.

Toledo gave up 1,975 yards in 11 games for an average of 179.5 per game, edging Michigan, with 179.7. Miami of Ohio 189.3 and Notre Dame 981.1 were the third and fourth finishers, respectively, in overall defense. It marked the third straight year that Toledo had led overall defenders.

Michigan limited 11 foes to 63.3 yards a game on the ground and only three touchdowns. No. 1 ranked Nebraska, facing Alabama in the Orange Bowl, was second in rushing defense with an 85.9-yard average yield, followed by Notre Dame, 86.4.

In scoring defense, the Wolverines gave up only 6.4 points a game. Alabama placed second with 7.6 and Nebraska third with 8.2. Toledo was fourth, 8.3.

The country's top defender against passes was Texas Tech, which limited 11 rivals to 60.1 yards a game through the air. Cincinnati followed, with 68.0 and then came Toledo 70.5.

Utah had the best punting record, averaging 46.7 yards. Texas was best at intercepting enemy passes, grabbing 24 of 264 Tennessee and Nebraska were best at taking the ball from opponents—47 times each—and Tennessee led in interception yardage, with 782 yards and seven touchdowns, touchdowns.

Feldman New Grid Mentor At Baylor

Waco, Tex. (P) — Rudy Feldman, head coach at the University of New Mexico, was selected Thursday as head football coach at Baylor, succeeding Bill Beall whose contract was terminated after his third dismal season.

The 39-year-old UCLA graduate posted a 17-12-2 record at New Mexico the past three seasons and was runner-up for the Western Athletic Conference title the past two years.

In 1957, Feldman joined coach Jim Meyers staff at Iowa State and in 1958 moved to Oklahoma where he was assistant under Coach Bud Wilkinson as the Sooners went to the Orange Bowl twice and won three Big Eight championships.

In 1963, Feldman accompanied Eddie Crowder to Colorado where he served as defensive coordinator five seasons.

Football Interest Rises With Juarez Residents

... IOWA STATE-LSU IN SUN BOWL

El Paso, Tex. (AP) — Football never will replace bullfighting as the heartthrob of the 436,000 residents of Juarez, Mexico, located just across the border from El Paso.

"But 'futbol Americano,' as the people across the border call it, is making inroads.

State Hunting Termed Light

Much of Nebraska's hunting potential has apparently gone unheeded recently, as Game and Parks Commission conservation officers report light hunting. Pheasant and quail hunting has slackened off to almost nothing in some localities, and waterfowl hunting has been spotty. Some goose hunters scored well during the final days of the season, which closed on December 15. Duck hunters in eastern Nebraska are reminded the season closes Monday. Duck shooting continues through January 9 in western Nebraska.

According to reports of Game Commission men in the field:

SOUTHWEST

Johnson Lake is still harboring large numbers of mallards, but the birds are staying away from shore and out of scattering range. Hunters in the area are getting some shooting late in the day when the birds drop into cornfields to feed, however. Pheasant hunting pressure has been light to nonexistent throughout the entire southwest. Goose hunters in the Elm Creek and Lexington areas had some success in bagging Canada geese during the final days of the season.

SOUTHEAST

Hunting pressure throughout the area has been light, and prospects for the final days of the duck season dimmed somewhat with the freezing of the Salt Valley reservoirs around Lincoln.

NORTHEAST

Pheasant hunting pressure has been light, but hunters walking weedy areas and cornfields are encountering fair success. Gunners are also picking up a few cottontails and quail. Lewis and Clark Lake is frozen over, but some numbers of mallards are on hand along Gavins Point Dam, and hunters are downing a few ducks over cornfields in Cedar County. Very few duck hunters are afield, however. The tailwaters below the dam are providing a bit of fishing activity, as snappers are hauling in an occasional baddletail.

PANHANDLE

Ducks are on hand in the Bridgeport area, but they are avoiding gunners by going out to feed after sundown. Some 60,000 ducks, mostly mallards and gadwall, are still in residence at the Clear Creek Refuge. Anglers at West Kinnaird Reservoir have been taking rainbow trout up to 14 inches on trout pegs fished through the ice near shore. Fishermen have avoided ice farther out in the lake, as it is not yet thick enough to safely support their weight. A few hunters in the Pine Bluffs report some success. Pheasant hunting pressure throughout the Panhandle has been light.

Football In Japan

Tokyo (AP) — A 47-member Utah State University football team arrived here Thursday to play two goodwill games against Japanese University teams in Tokyo and Osaka.

Hastings Grabs Lead In Initial Cage Stats

With four of the six schools reporting, Hastings appears to be in complete command of the opening statistics of the Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference.

Coch Lynn Farrell's Broncos won the league's pre-season tournament and hold a grand slam in the five team categories recorded in this week's statistics.

The Hastings quintet is actually uncontested in most of the departments. The Broncos are averaging 90.8 points per game and giving up only 75.1. Their other 'bests' are a field goal percentage of .469, free throw mark of .651 and grabbing 55.8 rebounds per game.

thing, eh?" said Luis, a taxicab driver whose amazing reflexes have kept him alive in the daily jungle of traffic in Juarez.

"I go some day and see it," he said with a smile. "I go with friends."

This year about 2,000 Juarez residents and their friends will see the Iowa State-LSU clash, if pre-game ticket sales are any indications.

This is a far cry from the 20,000 or more fans who jam themselves into one of the Juarez arenas to watch a bullfight. But it is a start.

In a way, it was the Sun Bowl that has kept American football alive in Mexico.

Back in 1945, the Sun Bowl hosted what proved to be the first international bowl game when the University of Mexico played Southwestern University.

Mexico lost 35-0 and has never been back.

The University of Mexico still has a football team, but it confines its schedule to small colleges and freshman teams.

It would be murder if it had to play either LSU or Iowa State.

But then, several American teams have been murdered by the Bengals and Cyclones this year.

LSU blasted such schools as Notre Dame, Florida, Rice, Tulane, Texas A&M and Mississippi State this year.

Iowa State whipped Missouri, Kansas, Kansas State, Oklahoma State, New Mexico and San Diego State on its way to an 8-3 record one of the finest in the school's 76-year football history.

Iowa State coach Johnny Majors says he expects a tight game Saturday.

I figure both teams will score about two touchdowns apiece," Majors said Wednesday. "The winner probably will score three."

"Really, I don't think either team has a weak defense," Majors said. "I sure don't expect much scoring."

Majors feels Iowa State will have to control the ball to defeat LSU.

"It will be a very strong test of our offensive team. Our success will depend on how much offensive balance we have. Of course the same holds true for LSU," Majors said.

LSU scored 21 touchdowns rushing and 20 passing this year while Iowa State, not quite as balanced, scored 26 touchdowns on the ground and 16 in the air.

Iowa State whipped Missouri, Kansas, Kansas State, Oklahoma State, New Mexico and San Diego State on its way to an 8-3 record one of the finest in the school's 76-year football history.

Iowa State coach Johnny Majors says he expects a tight game Saturday.

I figure both teams will score about two touchdowns apiece," Majors said Wednesday. "The winner probably will score three."

"Really, I don't think either team has a weak defense," Majors said. "I sure don't expect much scoring."

Majors feels Iowa State will have to control the ball to defeat LSU.

"It will be a very strong test of our offensive team. Our success will depend on how much offensive balance we have. Of course the same holds true for LSU," Majors said.

LSU scored 21 touchdowns rushing and 20 passing this year while Iowa State, not quite as balanced, scored 26 touchdowns on the ground and 16 in the air.

LSU blasted such schools as Notre Dame, Florida, Rice, Tulane, Texas A&M and Mississippi State this year.

Wife Of Seized Freighter Captain Asks Nixon's Help

Key Biscayne, Fla. (AP) — The wife and three children of the captain of a freighter seized by Cuba visited President Nixon unexpectedly Thursday to ask for help in obtaining the captain's release. The Florida White House called the attack an "unconscionable act" and said the United States would demand immediate return of the wounded captain, Jose Villa.

As the freighter, strafed by machine-gun fire from a Cuban torpedo boat, was towed toward the Communist island, Nixon's naval aide, Cmdr. Craig Campbell, escorted the Miami family inside the Florida White House. In a 15-minute conversation the President "expressed his grave concern for the husband and father," press aide Ronald L. Ziegler said.

"The United States will be demanding the immediate return of Capt. Villa through the Swiss Embassy in Havana," Ziegler said.

"This is an unconscionable act by the Cuban government and it is an act that cannot be tolerated in the international community."

Bloody Deck

The freighter Johnny Express, en route from Haiti to Florida with 14 crewmen aboard, was attacked Wednesday in Bahamian waters about 120 miles off the Cuban coast.

Holiday Party Poster Says To 'Taiwan On'

(c) Chicago Daily News

Washington — Henry A. Kissinger likes w-o-n-t-o-n women.

That's one of the mock "Chinese wall posters" being slapped around at Washington's holiday parties.

Other samples are "Yangtze Go Home" or "Your hostess wants you to Taiwan on."

Oh well, there had to be a replacement when the watch jokes wound down.

In his first distress call, Villa radioed, "the deck is covered with blood. I am dying, chico." The message referred to "dying and wounded" crew members.

Ziegler said the U.S. government has been informed that Villa "is in Cuba," indicating that the wounded may have been airlifted off the ship.

The Johnny Express is operated by the Miami-based Bahama Lines, owned by four Cuban exile brothers who have been prominent in efforts to unseat Fidel Castro since he seized power in Cuba in 1959.

The Lylla Express, a sister ship of the Johnny Express, was seized in the same area Dec. 5 and at last report was still in Cuba with her 14 crew members.

In a broadcast Thursday, Havana radio said the two vessels were owned by "noted agents of Yankee imperialism" and had participated in pirate acts against Cuba. The Cuban government warned: "Pirate ships sailing under any flags will be intercepted any distance from our coasts."

Villa's wife, Isabel, went to the Florida White House with

Topless Dancers In Action Again

Omaha (AP) — The Hide Away Lounge opened for business again Thursday afternoon and topless dancers were performing.

The Omaha City Council recently revoked the Hide Away's license because of violation of a new ordinance prohibiting topless entertainment.

Walter Matejka, attorney for owner Frank Paladino, said he has filed an appeal with the Nebraska Liquor Control Commission and he fees that action takes the case out of the city's jurisdiction.

Matejka said he advised Paladino to do what police tell him to do if officers visit the lounge.

her son, Jose Antonio, 14, and her daughters, Mari Pili, 18, and Isabel Christina, 21.

"We're the Villa family," Isabel told a Secret Service agent in a small guardhouse decked with Christmas lights. "We want to see the President."

The guard said it was impossible, but when Isabel replied that, "we're desperate," he agreed to take a message inside.

Teofil Babun, one of the brother-owners of Bahama Lines, denied that any of his ships had been used in Cuban raids.

Another spokesman for the company said the seizure of the two ships was the result of "a personal grudge" by Fidel Castro against the Babun brothers.

The U.S. Coast Guard did not intervene in the incident because the Johnny Express flies the Panamanian flag. Three planes with medics were dispatched, however, but failed to find the vessel.

In Panama, the government said it asked the Mexican Embassy in Havana on Thursday to make representations to Cuba to release the Johnny Express and the Lylla Express and their crews.

Panama does not maintain relations with Cuba. The Mexican Embassy is in charge of Panamanian affairs there.

Six Sentenced

Vienna (UPI) — Six Romanians were sentenced to prison terms between 2 and 2½ years Thursday for hijacking a Romanian airliner to Vienna last May.

The hijackers, who were armed with rifles, knives and pistols when they forced the three-man crew to fly to Vienna on May 27 were found guilty of "blackmailing the crew," "restricting the freedom of passengers" and "illegal possession of arms." Austria has no anti-hijack law.

Two Goldwaters, Buckleys Plan South Pole Trip

(c) Newhouse News Service
Washington — Two Buckleys and two Goldwaters are going south after Christmas — to the South Pole.

New York Conservative
Republican Sen. James
Buckley, his columnist brother
William F. Buckley Jr., Sen.
Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.), and his son Barry Jr., the GOP congressman from California, are accompanying Navy Secretary John H. Chafee on a tour of Antarctica in January.

They will join a Navy team
Jan. 9 in Christchurch, New Zealand, to fly to McMurdo Sound in the world's southernmost continent for a three-day visit. The VIP tour — one of two or three scheduled annually by the Navy — will include a flight to Byrd Station and the South Pole and a visit to the Soviet scientific station at Vostok.

Fatigue-caused losses of only 3 minutes an hour per employee, based on the minimum wage scale, can cost $182 a year.

Only 30 minutes lost a week from rejects, costs $45.40 per employee, not taking into account wasted materials. If you employ only 10 people, the loss can be considerable; if you have 1000, it can be staggering. Large or small, few businesses can afford profit erosion like this. More and more now subscribe to the MUZAK® service. Independent studios show that MUZAK® increases employee alertness and vigilance.

The MUZAK service is different from mere background music. For different. For years, scientists studied the ebb and flow of employee efficiency.

They found it flows in a cycle curve. By studying this curve and the employee moods underlying it, MUZAK specialists were able to discover, through exacting tests, just which kind of music would best stimulate the employee at the times of day when efficiency is lowest.

Thus, music by MUZAK is psychologically selected, recorded and programmed to vary throughout the day and fit the employee efficiency curve.

Here is a practical little game that will give you a "mystery" every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 5 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 4, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you right.
